HITLER CONFERS WITH MOLOTOV

Pittsburgh Poison Victim Receives Last Rites

A priest administers last rites to one of the 12 men who were fatally stricken after eating breakfast at a Pittsburgh social relief station. At least 50 other men who shared in the meal are reported seriously ill Pittsburgh chemists claim the mass poisoning was caused by poisonous powder becoming mixed with flour that was used in making pancakes.

Believe Nazis Ask Free Hand In Balkan War

Cool Reception Given Soviet Premier In Berlin, Although Germans Call Visit Important; Fascists Start Koritza Drive

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler today received Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaf Molotov of Soviet Russia—once the target of Hitler's bitter scorn—amid indications that Russia would be asked to join the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis for building a "new world order."

Presumably, Hitler was bargaining with Molotov for a Russian "hands off" policy in the Balkans and Near East.

Unlike other state receptions, when German bands have met visiting diplomats by playing their national anthems, the band at the Anhalter station where Molotov arrived lapsed into silence as soon as the Soviet envoy had finished taking the salute.

Nevertheless, Nazis said the visit was of great consequence and indicated that Hitler would invite Russia to enter the triple alliance of Germany, Italy and Japan.

As usual Moscow was silent on the import of Molotov's mission.

In the 16-day-old Balkan conflict meanwhile, Belgrade dispatches said a new Italian drive was pushing Greek troops back from the heights of Koritza, 10 miles inside Albania, where 30 000 Italian soldiers were previously reported "trapped" under constant shell-fire from Greek mountain batteries.

Advices from the Yugoslav frontier said Premier Mussolini's Fascist columns made two furious attacks on the heights forcing the Greeks to retreat to their side of the frontier.

In direct contrast to this report, Athens said shattered Italian forces were retreating in disorder along the whole 100-mile war front, with Greek troops pursuing them under heavy bombing assaults.

The Greek high command said Greek mountain troops, supported by cavalry, were mopping up behind the routed Italians and consolidating their gains despite "intense activity" of Fascist warplanes

A Greek government spokesman said the flight of Italy's Centaur Alpine division in the Pindus mountains had "created panic behind the Italian lines," and he added:

"It's a good start We're satisfied."

Mussolini's high command devoted one paragraph of its daily communique to the Grecian campaign declaring.

"On the Epirus front (in northwest Greece) enemy attacks on Kalibaki were completely smashed. Our air force carried out intensive, repeated bombardment of military objectives at Ioannina Metsovon, Kastoria, Corfu, Larisa and the isthmus of Lake Presba All our planes returned"

The high command acknowledged that bombing planes presumed to be British attacked Italy's main naval base at Taranto near the "instep" of the Italian boot, badly damaging a warship. It reported six, and possibly nine, of the raiders were shot down.

A Greek communique reported that British planes carried out destructive night raids on the important Albanian ports of Durazzo and Valona, setting fires visible 100 miles at Durazzo and blowing up a munitions dump at Valona.

An Italian radio broadcast asserted that the Fascist navy has cut away more than 12 miles of sea cable between Britain's Mediterranean strongholds of Malta and Gibraltar, thus severing connections between London and the Near East.

There were signs, meanwhile,

Explosions In Factories In Two States Kill 26

20 LOSE LIVES IN NEW JERSEY

Powder Plant Explosions In Pennsylvania Take Toll of Six Dead.

At least 26 persons were reported killed today in explosions in three industrial plants in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The most disastrous blast occurred at a torpedo cap plant in New Jersey. Two powder company plants in Pennsylvania also were damaged by explosions

The death toll:

At Woodbridge, N. J., at least 20 killed.

At New Castle, Pa., three killed.

At Allentown, Pa., three killed.

New Jersey state police and a Perth Amboy newspaperman reported "20 or more deaths" in a terrific explosion which demolished two buildings of the United Railway and Signal corporation at Woodbridge.

Windsor Lakis, reporter for the Perth Amboy Evening News, who was at the scene, told the Associated Press he saw 20 or more bodies of men and women taken out of the grounds

The scene, he added, was one of "awful destruction."

In the nearby Middlesex water company plant buildings were

HAS NO NEWS

FDR Cancels Press Conference Without Answering Willkie.

WASHINGTON — (NS) — The White House today announced that President Roosevelt had cancelled his press conference for this afternoon "because he had no news," that he had not heard nor had a chance as yet to read Wendell L Willkie's radio address; and that sometime tomorrow — weather permitting — the chief executive would start a four-day rest cruise down the Potomac.

The announcements were made by Stephen T. Early, Mr. Roosevelt's press secretary, who had just returned from a five-day vacation himself.

SUPPORT LEWIS FOR CIO CHIEF

Huntington Union Council Wants Re-election of President.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va —(U P)— If John L. Lewis wants to forget his promise to resign from the Congress of Industrial Organizations, it is all right with the CIO-affiliated Industrial Union council of Huntington.

The council voted last night in favor of keeping Lewis in office as CIO president despite his pledge to resign if President Roosevelt was re-elected.

George C Justice, president of the council, said Lewis "has done more to advance the cause of labor than any other man since the beginning of time"

THREE INJURED AS CARS CRASH

Mansfield Physician Hurt as Autos Meet at Intersection; Child, 3, Also Victim.

Three persons were injured, one seriously late yesterday afternoon in a collision at Marion and Cline avenues

Most seriously hurt was Dr. D R. Talbot, 720 Woodhill road, whose car, police said collided with a machine driven by Ralph Myers, Perrysville, shortly after 5 p. m

Dr. Talbot was still in General hospital today. Physicians who reported his condition as "good" said he suffered a mild concussion and abrasions.

Hurt in the same accident were Marion Lutz, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lutz, R. D. 1, Perrysville, who was riding with Myers, and Mrs. Myers. Both received emergency treatment and were released.

Mr. and Mrs. Lutz and Myers were not injured

Dr. Talbot's sons, Richard, 14, and David, 17, also escaped injury.

Three persons were treated for injuries sustained yesterday when cars driven by Walter Clark, Corunna, Ind., and Chester L Berstein, 12 Park avenue west collided six miles west of Mansfield on U. S. route 30 N

Clark and his wife, Eva, suffered lacerations and bruises and Berstein sustained a leg injury

State highway patrolmen said the accident occured at the intersection of route 30 and route 314.

WILLKIE GIVES UNITY POLICY

Urges Support of Defense Program, Opposition To Money Waste.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Wendell L. Willkie's program for national unity today awaited Republican congressional ratification and President Roosevelt's reaction before its ultimate scope could be determined.

Willkie outlined his program last night in a radio address from New York, telling the millions who supported him for the presidency that unity depends upon administration moves to prevent inflation and correct "some of our economic errors."

Warning that national unity was up to the administration and that discord and disunity would arise from suppression of the minority, Willkie called upon Mr Roosevelt to take into account "the very powerful opposition" which was recorded at the polls last week

The only Republican leader in congress available for immediate comment was Rep. Joseph W Martin, jr. Republican house leader and chairman of the Republican national committee He was glad that Willkie "is to give his powerful influence to the support of the American issues for which he fought in the last campaign"

"I believe" Martin said, "he (Willkie) is on honest and sound ground when he says democracy needs a strong opposition party. The unquestionable need of the hour is an opposition party that will uphold the president on matters o.

ADMITTED: Italy Reports British Raids On Taranto

(By United Press)

ROME—British planes early last night attacked the great Italian naval base of Taranto, at the head of the gulf of the same name inside the heel of the Italian "boot," a general headquarters communique said today.

It was asserted that Italian anti-aircraft base defenses and guns aboard anchored ships "reacted vigorously" but it was admitted that one Italian naval unit was "seriously hit" The communique claimed that six British planes were shot down and three others probably" were destroyed.

The communiques said the British had also bombed Derna, Bardia and Benghazi, Italian bases in Libya. Two persons were killed and 10 wounded in Derna, said the communique. It was said that the penal colony at Benghazi was hit, killing three and wounding 10.

Italian general headquarters claimed that Italian submarines had torpedoed and sunk two British ships steaming east through the central Mediterranean "in a strongly protected convoy"

In its first reference in 48 hours to Italo-Greek land operations the communique said that in Epirus Greek attacks against Kalibaki were "decisively repulsed"

Italian airplanes were said to have made heavy attacks on Greek military objectives at Janina, Mel-

Roger Peckinpaugh Named Manager Of Cleveland Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) Roger Peckinpaugh is the new manager of the Cleveland Indians

In taking the job Peckinpaugh becomes a baseball rarity- twice manager of the same major league club—duplicated—by Bucky Harris at Washington His previous tenure started in 1928, ended with his discharge in mid-season 1933.

"Peck," who is 49 and was once a star shortstop, succeeds Oscar Vitt, who was released after he led the rebellious tribe into second place this year.

Alva Bradley, the club president who fired Peckinpaugh seven years ago, announced Peckinpaugh signed a two-year contract today

FAILURE: Duce Faces Loss Of Mediterranean 'Empire'

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

The Italian reverse in the Greek adventure—(the Greeks call it a rout)—permits speculation on these interesting possibilities:

1 It may be the last time Mussolini's troops march alone and it may be the end of his dream of a Mediterranean hegemony all of his own

2 It gives the British a superb opportunity to strike hard at the Italians in East Africa and free the Suez from the Italian threat.

It is hard to escape the surmise that Italy invaded Greece under German promptings. As a front to sew up the British fleet in the eastern Mediterranean, draw British near-eastern troops into Greece as the British were drawn into the unhappy Norwegian campaign and weaken the British so they could not withstand a twin Axis offensive on the Suez and Gibraltar.

Likewise, with all respect for the valorous Greek resistance, it seems more than likely that the Italians began their incursion into Greece 16 days ago with a singular lack of enthusiasm and preparation.

Now that the Italians have stubbed their toes on the rocks of northern Greece and punctured their mid-rifs on the bayonet points of the Greek mountain infantry, they may have to call for German help

This can come in two ways, and in neither will the consequences be happy, in the long run, for Il Duce

Germany's troops can descend through Bulgaria (which isn't in a position to object) into eastern Greece This depends on Russia,

Red Cross Roll Call Workers Launch 24th Annual Drive

Richland County Red Cross Roll Call workers began their 24th annual canvass today, following an official send-off at the Roll Call dinner last night in the Senior high school cafeteria.

More than 200 workers, officials of the Red Cross, and Junior Red Cross members attended the dinner and witnessed the program which opened the 1940 "Mobilization for Mercy" campaign.

Goal for this year's Roll Call has been set at 10,500 memberships. Present membership is 10,700, according to J. H. Finefrock, chapter chairman.

In order to give the workers a clear picture of what the Red Cross is doing in Richland county, representatives from the various committees rendering Red Cross service gave short talks, explaining functions within the organization.

Previous to the talks, the Red Cross movie "Mobilization for Mercy," picturing how Red Cross workers throughout the world serve humanity in time of war, flood and major disasters, was shown

Those taking part in the talks were Martin Merschdorf, chairman of the first aid instructors; R. D.

FINDS BODY OF MISSING BABY

State Trooper Comes Across Lost Child, Dead In Woods Near Home.

(By Associated Press)

CARTERSVILLE, Ga. — (AP) — The body of Murray Upshaw, jr., two-year-old child missing since Friday, was found in the woods near his north Georgia mountain home today.

Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan said a state highway patrolman reported finding the child dead "in the woods back of the Upshaw place."

Troopers hurried to the scene to continue the investigation and Major Sullivan said he had no further information and did not know the cause of the child's death

Joel Parker, who lives about eight miles from Cartersville, found the body while walking through the woods with a searching party.

"I didn't look at him closely," Parker said. "He was lying face down under a pine tree."

Parker and his companions said they did not disturb the body after making sure it was the child, but hurried to lead officers to the place.

It was about a mile and a half from the Upshaw home, across the mountain just back of the farm. It was the same mountain on which the child and his dog had often played, but the family said he had never wandered so far away before.

Courthouse Noisy As Work Starts On Elevator Shaft

The usual morning greeting of county commissioners that "everything's quiet at the courthouse today" was missing this morning, as the ring of hammers against wood and steel, magnified by the high corridors filled the county building.

Rooms with sealed walls to keep the dust from spreading were being built on all three floors in the main corridors as a preliminary step to the construction of an elevator in the building

The rooms are being built of heavy boards, sealed on the inside to keep the dust from getting into the rest of the building during the three months required to build the new elevator shaft.

The dust-proof rooms all but fill the corridors, leaving only a narrow passage at the north side of the corridor through which entrance may be gained to the rooms on the east side of the building

As soon as the rooms are completed, work of tearing out plastering and walls will be started, according to Commissioner C. L. Sarcoll The work is being done by the P J Zeiher Construction company of Sandusky which built the Richland county home early in the 1920's

OFFERS $600 TO OHIO SOLDIERS

Would Give Some Comfort Not Provided By Government.

CLEVELAND — (U P) — Isadore Breslin, Lithuania-born American citizen—and proud of it—today offered $600 to provide "something the government doesn't give 'em" for Ohio national guardsmen at Camp Shelby, Miss.

"I've never been a soldier myself, but I'd like to do something for them," Breslin said. "Maybe they could use it to buy the boys some shaving cream, or a library, or perhaps some good, warm sweaters."

Breslin's offer, made to a newspaper advertising solicitor, was referred to army officers.

METER PARKING 3 DAYS AWAY

Barring Delays, Installation of Machines To Be Finished By Saturday.

Unless some unforeseen delay develops, Mansfield motorists Saturday will start putting pennies and nickels in parking meters when they park their automobiles on streets in the business district.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said installation of the meter posts would be completed today and that a representative of the Michaels Art Bronze company of Covington, Ky., would be here tomorrow to place the machines.

The 350 combination type meters are expected to be placed in operation Saturday.

Meters will accept either pennies or nickels, one cent for 12 minutes parking, two pennies for 24 minutes, three for 36 minutes, four for 48 minutes, and either five pennies or a nickel for one hour's parking.

The city ordinance specifies a violation to use the parking space for two hours in succession even though two nickels are deposited

The meters will be placed around Central park, on Main, Walnut Fourth and Third streets and Park avenue.

They are leased for a nine-month trial period during which time the city will pay $3.75 a month, the amount to apply on the purchase price of $49.50 per unit should council decide to buy the machines at the end of the nine-month period

'COLD WAVE' TO FOLLOW GALE

43-Mile-an-Hour Wind Whips City, County; 20-Degree Temperature Drop Due.

Mansfielders today took stock of property damage left in the wake of a windstorm of gale-like proportions that swept Ohio along with the rest of the middlewest yesterday afternoon and last night.

The mercury dropped quickly after the cold wind whipped out of the west late in the afternoon, but more cold and freezing temperatures are in store for tonight.

With the temperature at 44 at noon today, a 20-degree drop was predicted for tonight, sending the mercury well below the freezing point.

Yesterday's gales, which reached a velocity of 43 miles an hour in the Mansfield district, put hundreds of telephones out of service, uprooted trees and sent utility poles crashing to the ground.

Airport attaches reported that all planes in the vicinity were still grounded today because of the gusty weather.

Power poles in the northern part of the county were ripped loose and the power was off in some

MINE BOMBED

Sabotage Suspected In Blast 5 Miles From Canton.

CANTON — (AP) — County authorities sought today the motive as well as the bombers in an explosion which demolished a $25,000 steam shovel at the Metro Coal and Limestone company strip mine operations five miles southeast of Canton

George H. Charls, president of the company, expressed the belief that sabotage might have been involved because the firm has been supplying coal to two factories engaged in making munitions.

"We have had no trouble of any kind until this happened," he said.

The explosion yesterday reverberated over a wide area.

Reviews Patriotism In Past Wars In Armistice Day Talk

Patriotism burns brightest during a war and is lighted by some act of aggression against our rights as a nation, Judge C H Huston told an Armistice Day audience last night at the American Legion home

Judge Huston, who served during the World war and on the Mexican border, addressed veterans of two wars and about 40 young men whose names appear among the first on Richland county's selective service draft lists.

The address followed the annual Armistice Day parade which moved through the business district starting at 7 p. m Rain ceased shortly before the parade, but the threatening weather prevented several parade units from taking part.

In the line of march were the Legion drum corps, the Senior high school band, Madison high school band, members of the Legion and its auxiliary, Spanish American war veterans, Boy Scouts, the Women's Relief Corps and Sarah E. Lewis club, Red Cross ambulances and a city fire truck. Immediately behind the World war veterans were a number of men who are likely to be called early for selective service.

Promising Mittster To Fight In Show

Miller, Loudonville Lightweight, Is One of District's Best Amateur Prospects.

By CHARLES MARTIN, News-Journal Sports Editor.

WHEN Bob Miller of Loudonville steps into the ring for his three-round match on the Saprano-Doehla Athletic club show Wednesday night Mansfield fans will have an opportunity to see one of the finest amateur lightweight prospects in this district in action.

Miller who made his boxing debut on the Junior Association of Commerce tournament last spring is 19 years old and possesses plenty of talent

He lost a heart-breaker in the tourney, but the way he handled himself brought praise from the Mansfield experts who witnessed the bout.

Miller a hard-hitting righthand puncher is expected to go against Billy Bush of Cleveland. Bush, a rugged mittster, is a veteran and Miller will have to be at his best to win

The Athletic club program will consist of 10 bouts headed by a five-round match between Paul Carbetta, Mansfield flyweight, and Mike Stephens another Clevelander

In another top-notch bout, Nate Robertson of the Mansfield CCC camp, tangles with Henry Moore of Cleveland Both are welterweights and dangerous campaigners

Three other Mansfield lads will appear in three-round affairs Joe Sauer promising welterweight, Mel McKinley and "Cootch" Carmel, featherweight are the youngsters

Sauer who has advanced by leaps and bounds since he started fighting last spring, will match punches with Bob Turner of Marion, and McKinley, who formerly fought out of an Ashland stable, goes against Mike Cefferitte of Cleveland. Carmel will be matched today.

Tom Workman, a lightweight from Ashland and Bob Kemp, Loudonville featherweight, are also scheduled to fight.

Officials for the fight were announced today by Joe Saprano, co-owner of the Athletic club. John Eichinger will be the third man in the ring, while Sam Fox will be the official timer. Judges for the card are George Scoff of the Ohio State Reformatory; Joe Zimmerman and Sam Morgan.

It will mark the Athletic club's initial fight card and if it proves to be a success a show will be staged every month, Saprano said today

Tickets for the Wednesday show may be purchased at the Arcade Pool room, East Third street, Daley's Cafe, City News, and Joe Saprano's news stand

Peckinpaugh May Manage Indian Team

Cleveland Chief Expected To Name Boss at Noon.

By RAY BLOSSER

CLEVELAND —(AP) Strange things have happened in the Cleveland Indians' storm-blown wigwam but the strangest of them all may occur before nightfall

Those who back their choices with crisp green paper laid it on the line that President Alva Bradley, who fired Roger Peckinpaugh as manager in 1933, would summon him back today to his old job.

But since the Indians white-haired chieftain maintained a cheerful silence on the subject, the possibility of Coach Luke Sewell or a darkhorse getting the position was not ruled out

The 49-year-old Peckinpaugh piloted the Indians from 1928 to the middle of the 1933 season, when he was replaced by Walter Johnson During his reign the club picked up one third, three fourth places and one gloomy seventh.

Peckinpaugh's first connection with the Cleveland club was in 1910 when he signed with the old Naps and immediately was put into the lineup as shortstop.

Fame came to Peckinpaugh, however, with the New York Yankees and Washington Nats, and he wound up his active days in 1927 with the Chicago White Sox

Since he left the Indians he managed Kansas City and New Orleans and spent the last year in an American League promotional capacity.

When Bradley fired Peckinpaugh he told him "I still feel that you have the ability to be a successful manager but if we don't win under you we'll have to try someone else"

So the Indians tried three someone elses—Johnson, Steve O'Neill and talkative Oscar Vitt. Oscar, No. 14 of a line of Cleveland pilots, who have produced only one championship, lasted three seasons but mid-way in the third one a hurricane blew up in the wigwam.

It didn't end until Oscar's scalp was nailed to the Indian war clubs after the team finished only a game out of first place

Here It Is---Coach Directs Play On Field

Coach Simms of St. Mary's, indicated by arrow, after calling signals.

So much talk about Coach Carl Snavely of Cornell calling the plays from the sideslines in a recent game that two southwestern college coaches decided to play 12-man football—with the 12th man being the coach himself calling the plays on the field. Coach Mose Simms of St. Mary's, San Antonio, Tex., and Coach Ossie Doenges of Oklahoma City took the field with their teams, huddled with them, called the plays and then stepped back, watching for weaknesses in the opposing club. After a half of this, the coaches decided it was enough and delegated another player to do the 12th-man signal calling Coach Doenges says 12-man football speeds up the game. St. Mary's and Oklahoma City played to a 6-6 tie, on a very muddy field.

Massillon Tilt Heads Card

Unbeaten Tigers Tangle With Canton Club In Leading High School Contest.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A flock of scholastic grid encounters are scheduled Saturday on the Buckeye front, but only one—the Massillon vs. Canton McKinley classic—holds statewide interest

At least 23,000 fans will crowd Massillon's new stadium for the grand finale between the two Titans, and the Stark county boys believe the slightest break will decide the issue the teams are that evenly matched

Massillon won its 32nd consecutive game, and its ninth of the campaign Saturday by beating Youngstown East 26 to 0, getting all its markers in the first half as the Tigers were held to their lowest total of the season.

McKinley its nine-game record marred only by a 6-6 tie with Erie (Pa) Academy, handed Mansfield a 38 to 7 setback Massillon defeated Mansfield 38 to 0 earlier in the season

Three teams seeking to match Massillon's nine-game streak, fell by the wayside Saturday, while one was successful West Jefferson, little Madison county school, made the grade with a 31 to 6 conquest of Worthington, giving the West Jeff lads an 18-game string over the last two years

Several others, including Clay, a centralized school near Toledo, Oxford McGuffey, Xenia O. S. & S. O. and Dennison wound up with eight in a row

After seven victories Steubenville Central Catholic dropped a decision to Weirton (W Va) in another Armistice day game, 7-2.

At McConnellsville, C. E Fisher, who played halfback on the first McConnellsville team 40 years ago sat on the sidelines and watched his son, John drive for the point after touchdown which defeated Caldwell 13-12, and won the Muskingum Valley league championship

Dodgers Get Phil Pitcher

Kirby Higbe Goes to Brooklyn In Big Trade.

NEW YORK —(AP)— With the purchase of Pitcher Kirby Higbe from the Phillies yesterday, the Brooklyn boss, Larry MacPhail, became the successor to Tom Yawkey of the Boston Gold Sox as baseball's freest spender. He has been the buyer in the two biggest deals of the past year.

Just how much money the Dodgers paid for the 25-year-old right hander wasn't announced, but the best estimates put it at $100,000. Brooklyn also sent Vito Tamulis and Bill Crouch, pitchers and Thompson Livingston, a catcher drafted from Springfield of the Eastern league, to the Phils.

The combination of cash and players comes close to fitting the $150,000 price tag that owner Gerry Nugent had placed upon his star hurler.

Brooklyn's other big venture into the ivory market was last June, when the Dodgers sent cash and four players to the St. Louis Cardinals for Joe Medwick and Curt Davis in what was figured as a $200,000 deal.

Has Wife's O. K. For New Try At 'Bat' Record

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. —(U.P.)— Manus (Mickey) Morgan, present holder of the world's record for a "human bat" jump, is preparing to attempt to break his own record.

He said he has his wife's permission and will make the jump when a concern will sponsor the event.

Morgan's record was established in 1937 at Sioux Falls, S. D., when he jumped from an airplane at an altitude of 15,500 feet. The previous record, made the same year, was held by Clem Sohn, who established it in France when he climbed to 12,500 feet before leaving the plane.

The two men used similar methods in making the jump. Each soared downward on the "bat wings" attached to their arms and body until it was necessary to open a parachute.

Morgan retired from "bat wing" jumping after he married. He is an electric welder.

He hopes to make his new jump from a plane flying upwards of 20,000 feet above sea level.

Senator Urges Debt Limit of $75,000,000,000 for U. S.

GEORGE WOULD OVERHAUL TAX STRUCTURE TOO

Broader Tax Base Instead of Higher Rates Advocated By Georgia Democrat.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Walter F. George, D., Ga., said today that the new congress should raise the national debt limit to $75,000,000,000 and overhaul the federal tax structure immediately after convening Jan. 3.

George is slated to succeed the late Sen. Key Pittman, D., Nev., as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. He also is the ranking Democratic member of the senate finance committee which will have to consider the debt and tax problems.

He allied himself with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who last week said that the debt limit must be raised to $65,000,000,000 because of defense spending. The defense tax bill enacted last summer permitted expenditure of $4,000,000,000 above the existing $45,001,000,000 debt limit for defense purposes only.

George asserted that the nation's economy is in danger of becoming dependent on defense spending which, he said, must end some time. Therefore, he continued, the tax structure must be so revised so as to encourage private enterprise.

He said he would recommend a broadening of the tax base rather than a heavy increase in rates.

It was almost certain that the debt and tax problems would not be brought up during the few remaining weeks of the congress.

The house will meet next Monday and probably take up the question of adjournment then. Republican house Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., will oppose any adjournment move and demand a roll call vote if such a resolution is presented.

The senate meets today, but will recess immediately out of respect to the late Sen. Pittman, will meet again next Monday to hold the first business session since early in October. There have been brief meetings every three days, but no business has been transacted.

His parole is effective Jan. 2 when he will have served a little over a year. Three others in this vicinity who received paroles were Charles Hoyt, jr., and Donald Lewis, burglary and larceny, effective May 1, 1941 and Oct. 1, 1941, respectively, both of whom are from Huron county; and Howard Stover, Crawford county, operating a motor vehicle without the owners consent, May 1, 1941.

VERDICT ORDERS SONJA HENIE TO PAY PROMOTER $77,113.44

NEW YORK (UP) — Sonja Henie, the Norwegian skater and moving picture star, must pay Dennis Scanlon, St. Paul, Minn., promoter, $77,113.44 for breach of contract, a New York supreme court jury ordered today.

The sealed verdict was returned by a jury composed of five women and seven men after a six-day trial which was concluded last Friday.

Neither Miss Henie nor her husband, Dan Topping, who had attended all sessions of the trial, was in court when the verdict was handed up to Judge Aron Steuer.

Scanlon charged that through his efforts and contacts the ice star rose to movie stardom. He said that the contract to which they had agreed in February, 1936, stipulated that he was to receive approximately 10 per cent of her film earnings.

He charged that when she attained stardom in Hollywood, she ignored the contract and refused to meets its terms.

Judge Steuer had instructed the jury to return a verdict for the full amount or none at all.

The verdict represented the amount due by the terms of the contract up to the present date, plus interest.

SUPREME COURT OVERRULES ACT OF LABOR BOARD

Republic Steel Wins Appeal on Order to Reimburse Relief Agencies.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The supreme court ruled today that the labor board did not have the right to require a company found guilty of violating the Wagner labor act to reimburse governmental relief agencies for wages paid employes held to have been deprived of their regular work.

Chief Justice Hughes delivered the opinion which held that the board had acted beyond its authority in issuing such an order against the Republic Steel corporation of Cleveland, Ohio.

"We do not think," the chief justice said, "that congress intended to vest in the board a virtually unlimited discretion to devise punitive measures, and thus to prescribe penalties or fines which the board may think would effectuate the policies of the (labor) act."

The labor board had held that the money it ordered reimbursed would be deducted from the amount found due the employes for back pay. A government spokesman estimated that approximately $200,000 to $400,000 was involved in the Republic Steel case.

The litigation grew out of a board order directing the corporation to reinstate 5,000 or more employes who participated in the 1937 "Little Steel" strike. The Supreme court previously has refused to review the reinstatement order.

The board's relief order had been upheld by the third federal circuit court.

Important pending cases which involved federal regulation of hydro-electric projects and freedom of the press were not passed on today.

A national labor relations board order designating a CIO industrial union instead of a smaller American Federation of Labor craft union as a collective bargaining agency was upheld.

DOCTORS WARN FOLKS WHO ARE CONSTIPATED—

IT IS SAID constipation causes many human discomforts—headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness being but a few. BUT DON'T WORRY—

For years a noted Ohio Doctor, Dr. F. M. Edwards, successfully treated scores of patients for constipation with his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now sold by druggists everywhere.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful! They not only gently yet thoroughly cleanse the bowels but ALSO assist liver bile flow to help digest fatty foods. Test their goodness TONIGHT without fail! 15c, 30c, 60c.

SELLING HALTS EARLY ATTEMPT OF MART RISE

Steels, Other Trail Leaders Are Sold; Commodities Generally Higher.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Selling of steels and other recent industrial leaders today halted early attempts at another stock market rally.

Inclined to slip were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, Crucible, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Standard Oil of N. J., Consolidated Edison, Du Pont and Union Carbide.

Bonds were mixed and commodities generally a shade higher.

Market students saw a constructive indicator in the summary of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks which placed Christmas Club Savings reported by banks in 17 states where such institutions operate at $69,559,014 this year, or an increase of $8,174,100 over 1939.

Helpful were forecasts from merchandising quarters that holiday retail activities this year were likely to equal if not exceed those of 1939.

High Wind Blows Pheasant to Indianan's Door.

SOUTH BEND Ind.—(UP)—On the first day of Indiana's hunting season, Frank Joclyn just sat at home and let nature take its course.

He said a high wind blew a cock pheasant against his porch and left it dead ready for the dinner table.

TRAVELS 2,776 MILES IN YEAR TO TEACH FIRST AID—FREE

The record of M. E. "Pop" Warner as a lay instructor in first aid is typical of the type of service given the community by Red Cross volunteer workers.

This past year the Richland county chapter of Red Cross had 2,839 volunteer workers (all without remuneration) who gave 26,677 free hours of service to the chapter work, and "Pop" Warner was one of them.

"POP" WARNER.

Mr. Warner who has been superintendent of the boiler room at the Melco plant of Ohio Public Service, began his work as an instructor in first aid in 1933, and since then he has trained 185 persons, of whom 156 completed their courses and received certificates.

He conducted an average of more than two full classes a year and drove 2,776 miles going to and from those classes. That doesn't include his mileage in organizing classes or traveling with the Red Cross first aid truck.

His classes include housewives, undertakers, bankers, ministers, school bus drivers, school teachers, deputy sheriffs and farmers. One of his most recent groups included six employes at Malabar Farm. His oldest "graduate" is Mrs. Ella Van Zile, 72, Bellville, R. D. 2.

One of the most important services which Red Cross offers the community is first aid training. There are 10 active lay instructors conducting classes this year. During the past three years 1,500 persons have received certificates for having completed standard and advanced courses.

This is only one of the half dozen services of the Richland county Red Cross chapter, now conducting its annual membership roll call. Continuation of these services will depend on the response to the roll call.

KENNEDY DUE TO RESIGN AS LONDON ENVOY

Bullitt and Biddle Believed In Line For Court of St. James Post.

By KENNETH DOWNS
(INS Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy's resignation is due to be made and accepted very shortly, it was reported in well-informed circles today.

It is not clear at this time who will succeed him in the important and difficult London post.

First call, according to talk around the state department, will go to William C. Bullitt, still officially listed as ambassador to France. Anthony Biddle, ambassador to Poland, also is mentioned in connection with the London job, as is Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Russia.

It was understood that Bullitt wrote his resignation shortly after his return from France in July. His letter is still in the president's hands. The resignation has not been accepted. On the contrary, he has been under a good deal of unofficial pressure from high places to take over the London embassy upon Ambassador Kennedy's long-expected resignation.

Bullitt's closest friends disagree on what his decisions will be. Some believe he will bow to the wishes of the president and state department and go to London. Others feel his knowledge of foreign affairs can be of more use here at this critical period and that he will take an important job in this country.

The latter report that certain younger elements in the army would like to see Bullitt's energy and drive devoted to the delicate but important task of slashing red tape in that institution.

Bullitt's intimates agree that if he follows his personal inclinations he will return to private life, at least for a while.

They report he has lots of things to say which he thinks the country ought to hear, but they are things he cannot say freely as long as he holds an official job. Sale of several important newspapers, and one chain of papers, have been offered him and the idea of stepping into the role of publisher and speaking his mind tempt this former newspaperman mightily.

Response to his "Philadelphia speech" indicate he would have a large and interested audience. The fan mail ran to more than 25,000 letters and more than 2,300,000 copies of the speech have since been distributed.

Since that time he has received more than 300 invitations to address important gatherings all over the country and once again he has been approached as a candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1942.

There is no question that Ambassador Kennedy's resignation will be accepted. He has long desired to step out of the foreign service and probably would have done so months ago had not the bombardment of London started when it did.

Kennedy was reported about to quit in July, but when Germany began bombing the British capital, Irish pride and stubbornness asserted themselves and the ambassador stayed on through 244 raids until he came home to make his report at the end of last month.

that Germany might be facing trouble with conquered France. Unconfirmed reports in Bern said Maxime Weygand, former Allied generalissimo and now French commander in North Africa, had refused official orders to return to Vichy.

Germany's No. 2 Nazi, Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, was reported to have directed the Vichy government to recall Weygand because he appeared not to see eye-to-eye with factions favoring French co-operation with Germany.

Complicating the French situation further, Charles De Gaulle, leader of "Free Frenchmen," was reported to have taken Libreville, port of French Equatorial Africa, in his fight to bring all French Africa into his continuing war against Germany.

From the other side of the world, Domei (Japanese news agency) reported that Admiral Jean Decoux had resigned as governor general of French Indo-China because of growing difficulties with De Gaulle supporters. Admiral Decoux was put into office after the fall of France, reports at the time intimating that the new French government feared the old Indo-China regime favored De Gaulle.

Italian Aerial Attacks Staged

ATHENS, GREECE—(U.P.)—Italian airplanes have started bombing and machine-gunning Greek towns in a desperate attempt to regain the offensive which Italian ground forces lost in disastrous defeats at the frontier, the public security ministry said today.

Janina, road junction 40 miles from the Albanian border, the first main objective of the Italian army's right wing which was never menaced from the ground, was bombed and machine-gunned from the air.

Another unnamed town in Epirus was raided by planes which flew low, raking the streets with machine gun fire and dropping hand grenades. In the east, an unnamed town in Thessaly was bombed and Salonica had five air raid alarms in 24 hours. The island of Corfu in the Ionian sea and a village in the Peloponnesus were bombed. In the northern mountain sector, scene of one of the worst Italian defeats, the security ministry said, the retreating Italians pillaged three towns.

Fires Visible For 100 Miles

ATHENS — (NS) — A British bombing attack on the chief Albanian port of Durazzo, where quantities of Italian explosives were destroyed, was revealed by authorities in Athens today.

The RAF attack was carried out during the night, and destroyed a depot for storing explosives and combustibles.

After the raid, it was stated, huge fires rose above Durazzo, visible for 100 miles.

In addition, authorities said, a British formation attacked the Albanian port of Valona, blowing up a munitions depot.

The British aerial assaults were revealed as a great new victory was claimed for Greek forces on the central front, while Athens circles estimated more than 9,000 Italians have been killed, wounded or captured in a spectacular series of Fascist reverses.

One Italian division has been routed, authorities said, and a second has been trapped. Fascist troops were reported in flight along the entire battle zone.

This morning's Greek war communique said that many Italian soldiers and much war material had been captured and told of intensive aerial activity. It stated:

"A great number of Italians were taken prisoner, including officers, on Sunday and Monday and much war material was captured."

S.O.S. SIGNAL

Silence Follows Distress Call of Bombed Freighter.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Silence engulfed the bombed British freighter Baltimore today on the heels of a desperate distress signal which indicated the vessel's crew of 17 was going down without benefit of lifeboats.

Her last reported position roughly was 300 miles west of Ireland, and it was from there that she first signalled an attack by German warplanes.

At Red Cross Roll Call Dinner

Shown above are some of the 200 Richland County Red Cross Roll Call workers who last night attended the annual Roll Call dinner and program. Talks by key workers in the Red Cross and skits presented by the Junior Red Cross of Mansfield and the Shelby chapter highlighted the program. The drive closes Nov. 30.

WILLKIE GIVES UNITY POLICY

Urges Support of Defense Program, Opposition To Money Waste.

defense and other matters in the interest of the country, but that will not hesitate to oppose him when, in its judgment, his policies are not in the interest of the people."

By implication, Willkie accused Mr. Roosevelt of usurpation of congressional powers, subjugation of the courts, concentration of enormous authority in his own hands and warlike talk.

He re-stated the principles upon which he conducted his campaign, asserting that "my fight for those principles has just begun—I shall not be silent and I hope you will not be."

If the administration wants national unity, he said, it must give open minded consideration to the recommendations of the opposition. Thereby, he contended, the national economy would thrive and the national income hit the $100,000,000,000 a year figure necessary to make the national defense tax burden bearable. Willkie counselled his followers to fight on as "the loyal opposition" toward what he evidently regarded as a considerable modification of administration policies.

Willkie eliminated himself from any possibility—however remote—of joining the Roosevelt cabinet. He said any suggestion that the minority join the majority by surrendering its convictions must be rejected utterly—"This is a totalitarian idea, a slave idea."

"Our national unity," he said, "cannot be made with words or gestures. It must be forged between the ideas of the opposition and the practices and policies of the administration."

And with the request for consideration of the principles of his own following in the shaping of administration policies, he said there were five steps which should be taken immediately to "counteract the threat of inflation and to correct some of our economic errors:"

1. Cut all but national defense expenditures to the bone, maintaining work relief but with every effort to substitute productive jobs.

2. Encourage private capital to provide new plants and machinery for national defense to prevent nationalization with federal funds of any American industry under the guise of defense.

3. Levy taxes to achieve pay-as-you-go as nearly as possible.

4. Adjust taxes and government restrictions "to take the brakes off private enterprise."

5. Change from the "punitive attitude toward both little and big businessmen."

"Regulation there must be," Willkie said. "We of the opposition have consistently recommended that. But the day of the witch hunt is over.

"If this administration puts the party of America really at bat, it must consider without prejudice and with an open mind the recommendations of the opposition."

He reiterated his general endorsement of Roosevelt administration of national defense efforts and of giving aid to Great Britain, but he said the opposition should see that defense money is not wasted and that aid to the British did not harm our own interests.

"However, I believe," he said "that our aid should be given by constitutional methods and with the approval, accord and ratification of congress."

WORKERS OPEN ROLL CALL DRIVE

Launch Red Cross Campaign Following Dinner Attended By 200.

Iden, chairman of the first aid committee, who interviewed David Ganyard, a pupil in the water safety class. Mrs. Leopold Adams, chairman of the Volunteer Service committee; Mrs. Warren Fort, instructor of Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick; Elsie McFadden, head of the Junior Red Cross; Patrolman Bruce Friday, a student in the police first aid class; and Mrs. C. C. Fish, of Shelby, a production worker.

Skits by a group of Junior Red Cross members and the Shelby branch of the Red Cross were also presented.

The skit given by the Junior Red Cross members told of the work now being done by the organization, such as purchasing glasses for needy children, knitting sweaters, sewing, and sending Christmas boxes to the poor.

Those taking part in the skit were Louise Black, Carpenter school; Mary Kathryn Rust, Western; Raymond Bacquet, Bowman; Sally Kirkpatrick, Hedges; Mary Cole, Woodland; and Ruth Zaebst, West Fifth.

The skit presented by the Shelby Chapter, written and directed by Mrs. L. N. Hoffman, chapter chairman, was called "Six Easy Lessons on How to Obtain a Red Cross Membership."

Participating in the playlet in addition to Mrs. Hoffman, were Mrs. C. C. Fish and Mrs. Loust Patterson, jr. The skit was an amusing account of the various difficulties encountered by the Red Cross workers when soliciting and how they could be overcome.

At the close of the program, Daniel Green, field representative from Washington, D. C., spoke briefly to the gathering, praising the work that has been done by the Red Cross in Richland county.

"The whole future of the Red Cross and its humanitarian work depends on the volunteer workers such as are gathered here tonight," he said.

Green then told about how the European war situation had put "terrific burdens" on the Red Cross and how much the organization needed money to carry on its work.

L. W. Birch, general chairman of the Roll Call drive, was master of ceremonies at the dinner.

Blessing preceding the dinner was offered by Mrs. Louis J. Patterson, jr., chairman of the Shelby chapter of the Junior Red Cross. Mrs. Louis J. Ott was in charge of dinner arrangements.

20 LOSE LIVES IN NEW JERSEY

wrecked. Several persons, he added, were injured there.

Blocks in the vicinity of the blast felt the extent of the blast which swamped police and newspaper offices with telephone calls in nearly every municipality in the metropolitan area.

The 100-by-200 foot main plant of the corporation located about 15 miles from downtown Manhattan, N. Y., and the same distance from Newark, was completely wrecked, Lakis said.

Perth Amboy General hospital reported between ten and 20 persons had been brought in for treatment and Rahway hospital said "quite a number" were rushed there and "they are in pretty bad shape."

Police in Bayonne, 11 miles from the plant, reported several hundred telephone calls and said numerous windows were broken.

At 9:45 a. m., the Newark state police teletype station said there were sufficient ambulances and physicians on the scene.

Supt. Mark O. Kimberling of the state police said at Trenton reports from troopers at the scene indicated there were about 20 dead.

The company, situated on Woodbridge avenue between this community and Port Reading, manufactures railroad track torpedoes, flares and similar equipment.

Kimberling said it employed about 300 workers, mostly girls.

He said he had no information whether the company had undertaken national defense orders.

Police Chief Henry J. Harrington of adjacent Carteret said he alone had helped carry out five bodies.

Rescue work was going on all around him, he said, and he knew there were other dead.

Harrington reported there were at least 15 buildings, large and small in the signal plant, but only half a building remained standing. This was at the edge of the grounds.

Five women employes of the plant were taken to the Perth Amboy General hospital, several miles away, where they were reported in serious condition.

The explosion, third serious one in New Jersey in the past two months, occurred about the time the day shift was coming in.

Details Lacking On Explosion

Corporal Leo Doolan of the state police, said he had received a report a powder factory had "blown up" and that three men were "supposed to have been killed."

The blast Doolan added, "jarred all the buildings in New Castle."

One report said a small building at the Burton Powder company plant was shattered by the blast. The plant was described by some as comprising several widely separated small structures. There were no reports any workmen other than those reported killed were injured.

mother, Mrs. Bernice Davis, and one Gold Star father, Henry Schomer, in the parade. Schomer lost two sons in the war, one of whom died in Germany and one in an American camp after the war.

The parade was headed by Commander Earl Saltzgaber of McVey post, R. B. Gardner, past state commander, and Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

The meeting immediately after the parade was largely for the eligible draftees and there were about 40 of them in the audience.

Judge Huston told them that today's feeling about the war was exactly the same as that which had preceded the Spanish American and the World wars.

"The American spirit before the Spanish American war was one of indifference," he said. "We had just come out of a panic which was the aftermath of the Civil war of more than 30 years before. We didn't want to engage in a war, we wanted to follow our peace time pursuits. We felt that Spain was imperialistic, grasping and greedy, but it wasn't our affair. But when our right to the sea was challenged we got into the war and patriotism burned bright in all of us. Several years after the war we began to ask ourselves if it had been worth while, if the war had been necessary.

"Then, 15 years later the World war started in Europe and our first thoughts were to keep out of it and maks as much out of it financially as we could. Again it was a war by imperialistic nations, prompted by the thirst for power," he continued. "But again we got into it when our rights were challenged and a spirit of patriotism swept the country like fire. But the aftermath was the same—the question arose as to whether our participation had been necessary, what we gained and if our men had died in vain. The spirit of the American people today and especially of the boys who are being called for training is no different now than it was in 1898 and 1917. But if our rights to the open seas are challenged a wave of indignation and patriotism will sweep everything before it."

Last night members of the Legion auxiliary served the Armistice day supper to Legionnaires and their guests, the veterans of the Spanish war.

At 11 a. m. yesterday, the exact hour of the signing of the World war armistice, a series of bombs were set off in Central park by Legionnaires, and in schools throughout the city there was a one-minute period of silence.

Members of the Mothers club of the Legion auxiliary went to Central park, escorted by an honor guard and placed a wreath at the foot of the Doughboy monument in memory of the men whose lives were given to the cause of democracy in the World war.

CITY CHECKS ON DAMAGE LEFT BY WINDSTORM

43-Mile-an-Hour Gale Whips County; Temperature Drop of 20 Degrees Due.

sections until midnight. At Galion the Northern Ohio Telephone company reported more than 100 lines down, and telephones out of service.

Two hundred pupils of the Sulphur Springs Consolidated school, six miles east of Bucyrus, stood outside today and watched firemen fight a fire in the school building believed to have been caused by damage to the electric wiring last night during the wind storm.

The fire was discovered at 9:30 a. m. today by Frank Zerbe, county dog warden, as he was riding past the building. He saw smoke coming from the east corner and notified teachers. The school fire alarm was sounded and 200 pupils marched out in orderly procession.

Fire equipment was summoned from Bucyrus and New Washington and attempts were still being made at noon to extinguish the stubborn and smoldering fire which seemed to be confined to the inner walls, roof and attic.

The building is a brick fireproof construction which was erected in 1922 at a cost of $100,000. School authorities said it was covered by insurance.

All of the equipment and books were removed from the building. Greatest damage it was believed would be to the gymnasium floor, the roof and attic.

A broken power line at the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate yesterday afternoon halted production for several hours.

Superintendent of Parks Frank Burton reported six trees were blown over in South park and that three others were cracked by the wind. The drive through the park was closed today while workmen sought to clear away the debris.

A new flag pole constructed at John's park last August was bent double by the wind and Burton said there was little chance to salvage it.

The flag pole on the city hall was ripped loosed from its moorings, tearing a large hole in the roof.

Numerous persons reported broken windows and garage doors, and County Engineer Howard Sword said two highway workers were on the job all night clearing branches from the roads.

Considerable damage was caused to houses and barns near Crestline and Galion, the wind whipping shingles and roofing loose from numerous buildings.

Power lines in Galion gave way about 7 p. m. yesterday and the east and southeast section of the city was still without power this morning.

Practically every city, town and village in the state reported broken plate glass windows, felled telephone and electric poles, damaged roofs and storage tanks. Several persons were injured by glass and falling objects.

Here are representative reports from cities and towns after the storm:

Cleveland—Below freezing temperatures early today after a 65-mile-an-hour gale smashed windows, blew down trees and poles. All airplanes grounded. Lake vessels hurried to the nearest ports. Damaged wires caused 1,000 customers of the Cleveland Electric Illuminating company to go without service.

Cincinnati — Widespread property damage. The wind reached 50 miles an hour. Earl Marsh, 15, was cut and bruised by debris from a downtown building. Airplanes grounded when wind velocity at 4,000 feet soared to 75 miles an hour. Many roofs torn off, flag poles blown down.

Columbus — Peak velocity reported at 62 miles an hour; top of water tank blown off damaging five automobiles. Fire department's public address system damaged. Trees blocked suburban roads. Cornice of Y. W. C. A. building blown off. One woman suffered possible fractured ribs when thrown to the ground by the gale.

Akron — Policeman injured when flag pole snapped off. Flying glass from broken street light globe cut a 74-year-old woman.

Sandusky—Four men adrift in Sandusky bay for five hours because the wind and heavy seas made it impossible to pull up the anchor of their small boat were rescued by J. F. Taten, a fisherman.

Defiance—The 145-foot steeple on St. Paul's Methodist church weakened by the storm and traffic in the area was blocked off.

Ottawa — Roofs of barns and houses blown off. One store window out. Utility poles broken off.

Norwalk—Fallen trees blocked routes 61 and 20. Four hundred telephones out of commission. Utility and telephone damaged greatest since 1928 ice storms.

Legionnaires Joke With Draftees Here

"We're on the farewell committee this time," Legionnaires jokingly told eligible draftees last night at the Legion home when young men likely to be called into selective service training within the next few months were guests of the veterans of the World war. Commander M. Earl Saltzgaber, at the left gives Virgil Mapes (next to him) a word of advise. Mapes is 23, lives at 208 Granite street and holds the war department serial number of 208. John Schuster, 24, of 172 North Mulberry street, admits to R. B. Gardner, (right) that the Armistice day of this present war can't come any too soon to please him. His draft number is 149. Both boys are single, without dependents and likely to be among the Mansfield boys inducted in the army within the next few months.

SERIOUS LOSS FACED BY DUCE

Help By Nazis In War Upon Greece Might Injure Fascist Dreams.

and it is quite likely that the Germans are talking to M. Molotov about it in Berlin today. If Germany goes through Bulgaria, she needs assurances of Russian neutrality and she needs Russian help to keep Turkey neutral. Germany wants no fight with Turkey just now, much less one with Russia.

If the risk of this route is too great, the Germans may pour through Italy and the Adriatic to Albania and Greece (the route through Yugoslavia probably would present difficulties of terrain.)

If that happens, it may be permissible to wonder how the people of Italy would like the spectacle of a German march-through. It's not likely their enthusiasm would exceed the dead-pan greeting which the people of Berlin extended today to M. Molotov, premier of a government which they once were told was the arch-foe of everything German.

In any event, there the German troops would be, either in Italy's front parlor or her watery front yard, and they wouldn't be leaving soon. Whatever Mediterranean campaigns were fought by the Axis from that time on, the Germans would dominate, and take a proportionate share of the spoils.

The British have shrewdly avoided rushing blindly into Greece and weakening their greater Mediterranean position. They have poured reinforcements steadily into Egypt. To permit the Axis to take the offensive at both ends of the Mediterranean is to risk not only the loss of a lifeline of the empire but the bottling up of a great army and a great fleet—an overwhelming military disaster.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1940.

Mussolini's advice to "live dangerously" is apparently being followed by his army of invasion in Greece.

Having been completed to Bowman street several weeks ago, the idea seems to be that there's no special rush about opening West Fourth street any further west.

The Detroit News apologizes for a typographical error that added three ciphers in a reference to the federal debt limit—making it trillions instead of billions—but with another four years to go, the compositor may have merely been looking ahead.

Willkie Advises His Supporters

MENTION of either the Democratic or the Republican party was strangely missing from the talk given last night by Wendell Willkie, defeated candidate for the presidency.

It was as if these party names were unimportant in comparison to the greater issues now confronting the American people, and emphasis was placed on the vital need for support of the president "with our best efforts for our country," coupled with "loyal opposition" to governmental policies which supporters of Mr. Willkie believe to be wrong.

"It is your constitutional duty," said Mr. Willkie, "to debate the policies of this or any other administration and to express yourselves freely and openly to those who represent you in your state and national government."

Arguing against the minority surrendering its conviction in behalf of national unity, Mr. Willkie said: "This would mean that in the United States of America there would be only one dominant party—only one economic philosophy——only one political philosophy of life. This is a totalitarian idea—it is a slave idea—it must be rejected utterly."

Five steps were recommended to counteract the threat of inflation and to correct economic errors:

Cut federal expenses, except those for national defense and essential work relief;

Use private capital in building new plants and machinery for the defense program;

Levy taxes so as to approach as nearly as possible a pay-as-you-go plan;

Adjust taxes and government restrictions so as to take the brakes off private enterprise and give it freedom under wise regulation, to release new investments and new energies, and thus increase the national income:

Government must change its punitive attitude toward both big and little business—there must be regulations, but the day of witch-hunting is over.

Mr. Willkie approved continuance of organizations formed during the campaign by his supporters but advised against associating his name with them: "I do not want this great cause weakened by even a semblance of any personal advantage to any individual. . . . The year 1944 will take care of itself. It is my belief that democracy is fruitful of leadership."

Rested after strenuous campaigning and with voice free from the huskiness caused by overstrain of almost constant speaking for a number of weeks, Mr. Willkie's post-election address will be regarded by many as a fitting climax to the most remarkable campaign of this generation.

Recognition Given 'Good Neighbor'

SO MUCH attention is being paid to "good neighbor" policies, as related to hemispheric unification of nations, that it is interesting to note that Lorain, as a part of its Community Fund activities, has adopted a plan under which recognition will be accorded "good neighbor" qualities in its own community.

Cities sometimes lose the neighborly touch that has long been common to small towns, villages and rural sections—yet the difference between a good neighbor and a bad neighbor is so readily recognized as to require no amplification.

Lorain's first "Best Neighbor," as chosen by investigators, according to the Lorain Journal, "is representative of millions of unselfish and unrecognized citizens—a woman who exemplifies all the virtues of the old-time 'good neighbor,' who in spite of her activities along many lines always finds time to help neighbors in distress."

As might be expected, the woman chosen for this recognition "was completely surprised when informed of the distinction, and couldn't understand why she should be singled out."

But her neighbors understood, and all of those whom she had helped understand, and her associates in church work understood—so, what difference if she doesn't understand, but simply goes along, in her own quiet way, being a "good neighbor."

British Sea Peril Grows

NO SOONER does Great Britain avoid destruction in one form than a new menace arises.

After the British had mastered the first attack against their sea power a new and more murderous assault came from the air. They proved their ability to control that within safe limits, and now they are challenged at sea again, with terrific destruction of the shipping which means their life and their basic power to wage war. This assault, as Prime Minister Churchill says, is more dangerous than the air raids, because it is more powerful than were the first Nazi attacks by sea.

Germany and Italy have been building new submarines and other craft for this job, and added to their own sea-killers are those taken over with the surrender of France. London reports say that the 50 American destroyers traded for sea bases are "coming into service when most needed" and are especially useful for convoy protection.

They say also, with an air of whistling to keep up their courage, that British shipping is nearly as great as it was at the beginning of the war. But that comes largely from tonnage taken over from other countries, whose resources are no longer available.

There are sure to be greater demands on American shipping and other essentials from now on.

According to Dr. Logan Clendening, the oyster is the most contented member of the animal kingdom, having made no progress in millions of years—and what could be happier than a self-satisfied oyster.

Newspaper advises hunters: "Never aim a gun at a person in fun"—possibly suspecting that some of its readers might be that dumb.

There's an idea that more people die from worry than from work—but it may be merely a matter of percentages.

BUT FOR ENGLAND

Many Surprises In New Senate

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—The new senate in January is going to be a very different group of men from what most of the senators themselves would have predicted, confidentially, last spring. There were quite a few surprises in the primaries, but the election added to them.

One of the biggest surprises of all is not that any particular senator was deefeated, but that one of them was reelected. This is Joseph F. Guffey, of Pennsylvania. Most of his colleagues had thought that Joe would run so far behind Roosevelt that he would certainly be retired to private life. When you add to this the fact that privately most of the Democratic senators had thought, following the 1938 election, that Pennsylvania would probably go Republican all the way down the line, the surprise is even greater.

ANOTHER big surprise was the defeat of Senator John G. Townsend, of Delaware. Townsend is a fruit grower down in the southern part of his little state, has remained a "farmer" despite being a senator, and was thought to be well liked by his constituents.

His absence will be highly gratifying to the New Deal, and to the Silver State senators, for his constant attacks on the Administration's silver-buying policy have been very annoying to both.

Senator Francis T. Maloney, of Connecticut, is, like Senator Guffey, one of those whose continued presence will confound the predictors.

Still another of these is Robert M. La Follette. Most of the political forecasters missed the boat rather badly in Wisconsin. One of them, who happened to be a great admirer of La Follette, was convinced after a careful study of the state that the electoral vote would be too close to forecast, but that La Follette was certainly beaten. A majority of the political scouts were sure that Willkie would carry Wisconsin, and agreed that La Follette could not win on account of the soreness occasioned by his endorsement by the New Deal.

Return of Senator Peter Goelet Gerry, of Rhode Island, was not a surprise, even to those who had predicted that the electoral votes of this state would go for Willkie.

Illinois leaders themselves were surprised that Senator James M. Slattery made such a good showing. Even those who thought Roosevelt would get the 29 electoral votes did not think Slattery had much chance of beating "Curly" Brooks.

THERE were those also who predicted trouble for Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, especially after the polls began to show how close the state was on the presidency, and how weak the Republican governor was. Vandenberg actually made one of the most spectacular races of any Republican in the country, though pressed closely for this honor by Governor-elect Dwight H. Green, of Illinois.

Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, on the other hand, while he led the national ticket handily, made a much poorer showing than the political wise-acres had expected.

Though he was not a candidate this year, Senator George W. Norris, of Nebraska, can also be chalked up as not "delivering" much of his own strength to those he was supporting. In a Roosevelt landslide, Norris's state not only went heavily for Willkie, whom Norris opposed violently, but elected a Republican senator to succeed Edward R. Burke, the anti-third term Democrat beaten by a New Dealer in the primary.

FAITH—I never thought much of that virtue.

Seemed to me a poor, weakened, sniveling sort of attitude. The sort of pose you adopted when you didn't have any gumption left in you.

Me, I liked to fight! I said to myself that maybe when I was ninety years old, and didn't have any scrap left in me, I'd slump down and try this faith stuff. But in the meantime I was going to put all my bets on my two good fists, my good old bean and backbone. If you studied and fought and worked and loved hard enough you ought to be able to do what you wanted with life—that's what I thought.

I was young and strong and very ignorant. I really believed what I said. And I set out to tackle life armed with that belief.

You certainly can do a lot and go a long way with just these fighting tools. Even though I have found a better armor now, I'm not going back on all that original belief. I still think you've got to put up a good scrap if you want to get anywhere.

But I've found something that will get you there faster than the stiffest backbone or the heartiest brain or the hardest wallop. I've found Faith—the Biggest Medicine of all.

I didn't find it until life had knocked me out and I had taken the count. I got up sick and groggy, but I still wanted to go on with the game. In fact, I wanted to go on with it more than ever before. I felt a desperate need of finding out if it was really worth while. Was it possible that Love and Courage and Honor really counted for anything after all? Were we just a superior sort of vegetable, and did we cease forever when our silly bodies died or our luck failed? Could envy, Lies or Death blot us out like that without a come-back?

I needed desperately [illegible] that I couldn't fight [illegible] [illegible] was darkness ahead [illegible] darkness [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] I couldn't prove that by my old equipment. Yet I had to prove it, or go mad with bitterness.

Then something suddenly came to life in me and reached out—like a great arm from my heart—reached out and out into the darkness, and as it reached, the darkness fell away.

Exactly as if I had grown a third arm, a spiritual arm, infinitely stronger and more clever, but just as real as my two arms of flesh.

The arm of Faith. My new fighting equipment.

Hold out your arm as you read this. Hold it out as though you reached for something with fierce determination—FOR SOMETHING WHICH YOU WERE SURE YOU WOULD GET. Shoot all your vigor, all your hope and enthusiasm and desire into that arm. Hold it with splendid assurance as though your dearest dreams were about to be dropped into your outstretched palm. Get the pose? Well, that's Faith.

That's how Faith reaches out to you when you're finally ripe for it.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Favor Pershing as Envoy to Vichy; Secretary Perkins to Be Replaced

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The situation inside France is such that there is more and more sentiment among administration advisers to draft venerable John J. Pershing as American ambassador to France.

It is believed General Pershing could do a good job because of his old friendship with Marshal Petain, now No. 1 man in the Vichy government. The two were comrades in arms during the World war, and never do they meet without an affectionate embrace on both cheeks.

But more important than this is the manner in which Marshal Petain is reported to be pulled in two different directions: toward the Germans on one hand, and toward the British on the other.

Chief advocate of friendship with Nazi Germany is Pierre Laval, long France's No. 1 appeaser, who has an inside track with Petain at present. Laval has been carrying on the conversations with Germany which aim to give French air and naval bases to Hitler, and his argument with Petain is reported to be that the British are not to be trusted, that France's future lies entirely with Germany.

On the other hand, Marshal Petain's natural instincts are pro-British and anti-German. Furthermore, these are the natural sympathies of most Frenchmen, including some of his other advisers.

French in Africa.

SO AT TIMES Petain is reported to be drawn one way by Laval; at other times almost ready to go to Africa and put himself at the head of the French army to lead a campaign against the Italians in Egypt.

Should the French North African army become active on behalf of England, it would mean much not only to the British but to the United States, whose biggest worry concerning the Monroe Doctrine is that a combination of German-Italian forces might use Dakar, French naval base on the bulge of Africa, for operations against Brazil and South America.

That is why "Papa" Pershing is considered so important to influence his old friend "Papa" Petain.

Note — General Pershing, 80 years old last September, is not in the best of health, usually spends his winters in Arizona, might suffer during the rigors of a French winter.

Wallace Seeks Job.

HENRY WALLACE came back from his hectic vice-presidential campaign looking considerably older. Not many people realized it, but he had been on the electoral warpath continuously since August, making 10 to 12 short speeches a day, and five to six major addresses a week.

There was no part of the country which he did not cover, and the surprising showing which Roosevelt made in the farm belt undoubtedly was due in part to Henry Wallace.

Wallace's friends are now urging him to take a vacation. Instead he is looking for a new job to tide him over between now and the time he takes the oath of office as vice-president of the United States.

Beginning then—January 20—Wallace will draw a salary of $15,000. But until then he is hard up. His salary as secretary of agriculture stopped last August, and his expenses since then have been heavy. In fact, he doesn't have quite enough on hand to keep the children in college.

So the new vice-president probably will write a few magazine articles and fill a few lecture engagements.

Capital Chaff.

AT LUNCHEON together the other day were Charlie Chaplin, Walter Winchell, Ernest Cuneo and Assistant Secretary of State Adolf Barle. Remarked Cuneo afterward: "I was a mere ego in a whirlwind of super-egos. I practically had to blow a whistle just to insert one word in the conversation." . . . Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles listened to election returns until 4:15 a. m. but was down at his desk reading a telegram from Greece by 9:30 a. m. . . . F. D. R. telephoned New York Attorney Morris Ernst on election night to thank him for the swell job done by his daughter Constance in helping put on the Democratic radio show from Hollywood. . . . Few people know it, but President Roosevelt had a head cold during the last few days of his campaign. It dragged him down during his Cleveland speech, and it was because of this that the presidential train from Cleveland to Washington crept along at a snail's pace. Dr. McIntire, the White House physician, wanted Roosevelt to rest and knew that if the train got to Washington early in the morning he would be up and at work. So the train arrived at noon.

Exit Fanny.

MISS FRANCES PERKINS' idealistic but sometimes inept secretary of labor, will not be in the third Roosevelt cabinet.

She will be replaced as part of the president's plan to put an end to AFL-CIO warring and to bring about unification of the two organizations. No. 1 on the president's list for Miss Perkins' successor is George Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and a vigorous advocate of labor peace.

With Dan Tobin, head of the AFL teamsters and a former White House secretary, Harrison was active in the 1939 negotiations to bring the two camps together.

Miss Perkins is on moderately good terms with both the AFL and CIO, and actually her department is one of the best run in the government. But neither laborites nor industry give her any credit for this, and she also has a failing for saying the wrong thing at the wrong time.

Inside fact is that Miss Perkins offered her resignation last spring, but Roosevelt declined it to avoid a scramble for the job with a campaign approaching.

Now the way is clear to use her replacement to further labor peace, which he is determined to effect as part of the national defense program. John L. Lewis, No. 1 obstacle to this, already has eliminated himself when he bolted the CIO and plumped for Willkie.

Other labor department changes contemplated are the promotion of Dan Tracy, former AFL vice-president, from second to first assistant secretary, and appointment of Van Bittner, head of the West Virginia United Mine Workers (whom Lewis tried to pressure into supporting Willkie), to Tracy's post.

Note—AFL insiders predict that Lewis' disappearance as CIO potentate will be followed by the replacement of William Green as AFL head.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

G. L., Kansas City, Kan.—The most recent estimate, I believe, that has been made about the number of new workers put on the job by the defense program is that of William S. Knudsen, who sets the figure at 600,000.

He points out, however, that a great many more would be employed if skilled workers could be found. It is interesting I think that he attributes the shortage of skilled workers to the disinclination of young people to take up manual labor after the World war.

"They seemed to get the idea that work with the hands was degrading. Many went to college who would have been better off in the machine shops," he says.

This attitude prevailed through the boom years and the lack of opportunity for young persons seeking to become skilled workers during the depression is what has brought about the present condition, according to Knudsen.

"Bill" Knudsen, by the way, is just about a perfect example of the point that there is nothing degrading about working with one's hands. Knudsen was once a bicycle assemblyman, a shipyard and railway roundhouse worker and a bench laborer in a steel mill.

S. T. P., Austin, Texas — According to Rep. Lee Geyer of California, who has made a study of the voting situation in the country, there are about 10,000,000 persons deterred from voting by poll taxes. Mr. Geyer says these are in eight states, Texas, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia, Mississippi, Arkansas, Alabama and South Carolina. He says that roughly these 10,000,000 are divided into six million whites and four million negroes. In the recent election there were somewhere in the neighborhood of 20,000,000 other "potential" voters (that is, persons of voting age) who did not vote.

P. K., Madison, Wis.—Hearings before the civil service commission on charges of Hatch act violations will be public. In this way differing from hearings under the old commission restrictions against political activity. The reason for this is that Hatch act violations are subject to review in the courts. A complete public record will have to be made for court hearings in case persons found guilty by the commission decide to appeal.

Although the details have not been worked out in actual practice yet, I do not believe that petty complaints will result in embarrassment to any federal workers. Not all complaints by any means will result in hearings. Preliminary investigations will disclose that some are not serious enough to warrant consideration. Recently, when the complaints filed with the commission had reached about 100, civil service officials said only about 25 were serious enough to merit even preliminary investigations.

A clarification of the law through hearings and court action will undoubtedly result in fewer and fewer trivial complaints being filed. The firing of persons found guilty is not discretionary with the commission. If a worker is found guilty of violation of the Hatch act, the law provides that the commission must fire him at once.

L. L. E., Raleigh, N. C.—So far as I know, there is no one in the government to whom you can carry your complaint about program material on the radio. The censorship clause of the communications act places the responsibility on the station. The Federal Communications commission has no authority to put persons on the air or take them off. The commission [illegible] constantly gets such complaints. A recent batch included one from a state adjoining yours [illegible] the commercial [illegible] for a tobacco program; [illegible] a program's effect on children; and there are several almost daily about liquor advertising. In each case the commission [illegible] to write back that it has no authority. The only thing I know that you can do is write and get your friends to write the radio station.

A Farmer's Diary

What's Your Opinion?

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I HAVE never been a fashionable man. I never will be one. Unless, of course, plain living on a farm comes back again to the forefront as an American way of life. And stranger things have happened.

The farm homestead, owned and operated by a citizen who wants the widest and best existence for himself and the best environment for rearing his family, might well become a privileged unit of American society. On my part, that is wishful thinking.

Such a state of things would leave to the cities where they would be happier—those folks who like best a routine job with someone to direct their lives and their employment. Many good people do not like to work alone. Many people need the bright lights and the movies, for their entertainment.

I have just read an interesting book "Fifth Avenue to Farm," by Fritts and Gwinn. (Harpers $3.00). The blurb on the cover calls it "A biological approach to the problem of the survival of our civilization." It recommends, among other things, that owner-operated farms be made tax free; that college graduates be encouraged to settle on the land and make their living there, and rear as large families as possible; that smaller colleges leave training of specialists to the universities, and concentrate on a broad general culture—such as that from which leaders and managers have always sprung, and such as is best to live by. In other words that America give special privilege and social dignity to the rearing of fine families; that fuller living instead of more comfortable living be made stylish.

I would like to know what my readers think about this. Should the government encourage larger farm families? Send letters to me at Bellville, Ohio. I will not use names in print, unless you give permission.

FIND NEW CURE FOR INFECTION

Scientists Recommend X-ray In Treatment of Gas Gangrene.

BOSTON —(U.P.)— Gas gangrene, an infection that has proved fatal in about 60 per cent of the cases recorded, can be prevented and cured by a new method of X-ray treatment.

Dr. D. Arnold Dowell and Dr. James F. Kelly, both of Omaha, Neb., announced at a meeting here of the American Roentgen Ray Society that the mortality rate for such cases has been reduced to less than six per cent in cases adequately treated.

The two scientists, who presented their statistics and case reports in a special scientific exhibit, declared that this type of treatment would also be valuable in curing acute peritonitis and other virulent infection.

"We believe that X-ray therapy alone, without serum or surgery, is superior to all other methods for treatment of these diseases," they said, "and we have data to substantiate this belief."

Outspoken in their condemnation of surgical amputation to cure gas gangrene, they added that "amputation as a therapeutic measure during the acute toxic stage is a factor in increasing the mortality rate in gas bacillus infection." It was emphasized that this type of treatment must be given early and consistently.

During the World War, when amputation was the only treatment, roughly half of those whose woulds were invaded by the gas-forming microbe died, and it invaded almost a third of those wounded.

Carnival Supplies Novel Theme For Cooking School

The accompanying scenes depict the carnival atmosphere which prevails during the "Cook's Carnival"—1941 version of the Gasco Food Institute which is to be presented here soon. This program is entirely different from any cooking event of its kind and is popularly called the year's most novel cooking school.

(1) A scene from the opening day's program, "The Midway," showing the carnival barker about to introduce one of the cooking "acts" of the first day's presentation. (2) The camera catches the carnival clown cutting a few capers much to the distraction of the Food Lecturer. (3) The carnival cowboy, ten-gallon hat and all, welcomes the audience to the Cook's Carnival. (4) A scene from the interesting second day program in which baking takes the spotlight. The 1941 Gasco Food Institute Cook's Carnival will be presented in Mansfield, at the Ohio theater on Nov. 13, 14, 15, beginning each morning at 9:30. It is being brought here through Journal, Mansfield Merchants and the Gas company.

Representatives Of 4 Colleges To Speak Tomorrow

Representatives from four Ohio colleges will speak at a meeting of the Society of Prospective Collegians to be held at the Mansfield Senior high school Wednesday at 7:30 p. m.

Among those who will speak at the session are Dr. Eleanor H. Yeakle, instructor of biology at Flora Stone Mather college, Western Reserve university, and Ralph Young, field representative of Wooster college. Speakers from Antioch college at Yellow Springs, ad Ohio Northern university at Ada, are also expected to attend the meeting.

Following the talks, which will deal chiefly with what each of the schools has to offer prospective students, tea will be served to the 200 pupils and parents expected to attend the meeting.

Miss Emma G. Waring, chairman, Miss Ruth Culbertson, Miss Beatrice McLees and Victor C. Ketner, comprise the committee in charge of the arrangements. The society is composed of students who expect to attend college upon graduation from high school.

Recommended and Used By Miss McFarland, In the 1941 GASCO Food Institute at

THE OHIO THEATER

Wed., Thurs., Fri., Nov. 13, 14, 15

FRIGID FRUITS AND VEGETABLES are really fresher than those that you buy in the city markets. Vegetables shipped into the markets are, as a general rule, picked before they are ripe and are allowed to ripen in transit, which is not the way nature intended it to be. To enjoy real vegetable flavor, the vegetable must be allowed to be sun-ripened in the garden. Frigid Vegetables are picked in season at the exact period of ripeness to be shelled, trimmed, graded, washed, packed and frozen "Strictly Fresh" on the spot thereby capturing and retaining the original flavor and goodness of the sun-ripened vegetable.

Waste elimination on Frigid Vegetables runs as high as 60%. You get all you pay for.

STATE TO OPEN MORE LAND FOR HUNT SEASON

60,000 Acres Near Dams and In Park Area Available, If Hunters Register.

When Richland county pheasant and rabbit hunters take to the fields at the opening of the hunting season Friday they will find thousands of acres of free state-owned hunting lands in the Muskingum Conservancy district and Mohican state park areas.

Well over 60,000 acres in the Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill lake sections and the Mohican park area near Loudonville will be opened to hunting to persons who register at the state checking stations in the parks and observe the state hunting laws. Checking stations are marked with large signs.

The pheasant season will be open from next Friday until Nov. 30. The limit is two cocks with four in possession after the first day.

The rabbit season, also opening Friday, will permit hunting until Jan. 1. Four animals per day and four in possession are allowed.

Skunk, opossum and raccoon may be hunted or trapped from Nov. 15 to Jan. 15 and the season on mink and muskrat will open Dec. 1 in inland areas and Dec. 15 along Lake Erie.

Only two raccoons may be taken in a day, but there is no limit in Ohio on the other fur bearers.

State hunting areas in Ohio, which are controlled by the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources, represent an increase of 25 per cent this year over last fall. The state now controls almost 250,000 acres of hunting land in state forests and conservation districts.

Following the meeting, records made by the choir made last year will be played for the parents. Mrs. A. LeMoine Derr will be in charge of the meeting.

Modern Marvels of Gas Cookery

AS PRESENTED AT THE

1941 GASCO FOOD INSTITUTE · COOK'S CARNIVAL

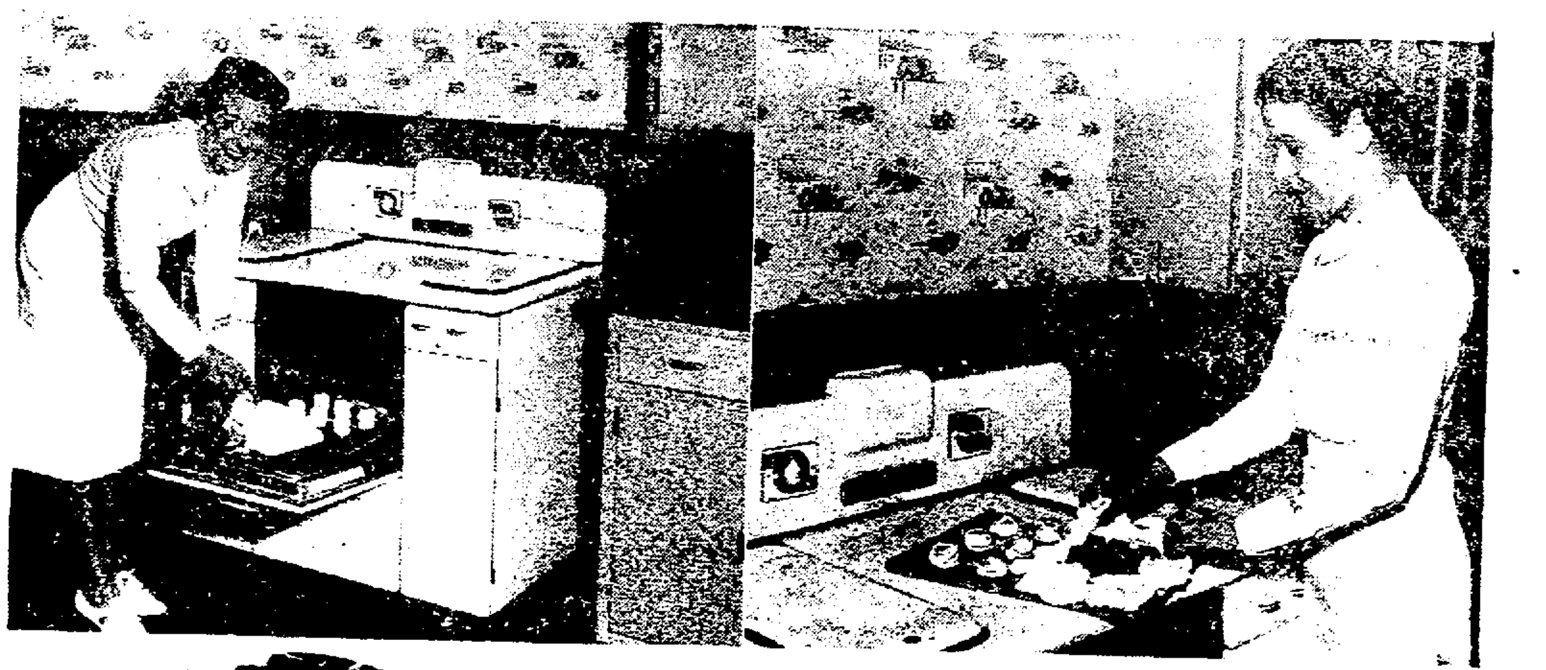

Cooked In A Common Pail . . .

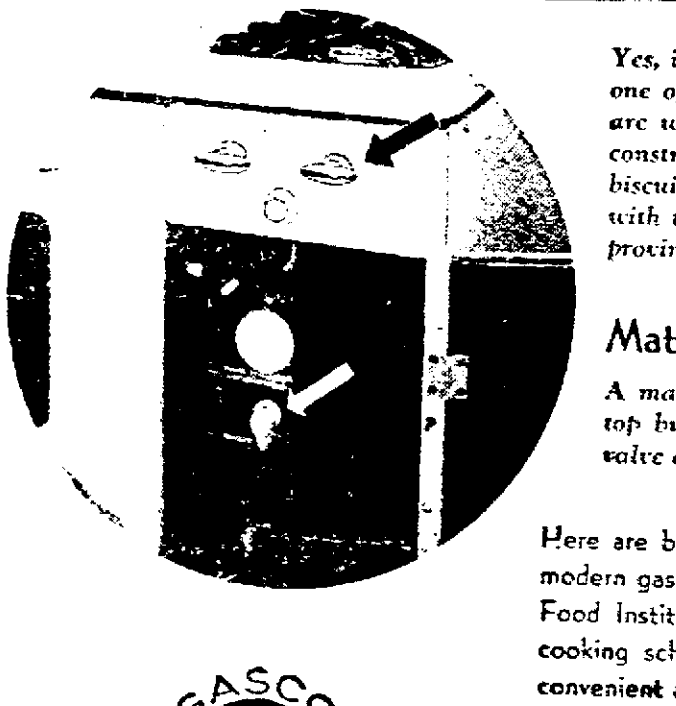

You wouldn't believe that the delicious short rib dinner pictured at the right was cooked in a common pail. Yet, that's just what you'll see done if you attend the opening program of the 1941 Gasco Food Institute.

Above, the Food Lecturer is seen cooking the short ribs and vegetables in the pail actually used in this demonstration. Fine utensil or common pail, you can always depend on good results using gas as the cooking fuel.

Ice Cubes Baked In The Oven . . .

Yes, ice cubes are actually baked in a Tappan CP gas range oven during one of the demonstrations in the Gasco Food Institute. The cubes first are wrapped in some of the insulation material which is used in the construction of this oven. Then they are placed in the oven with ordinary biscuits, allowed to remain from 10 to 12 minutes. When removed with the deliciously browned biscuits, the ice cubes are still unmelted—proving the insulation qualities of the oven of a modern gas range.

Matchless Cooking, Baking, Broiling . . .

A match is unheard of around a Tappan CP gas range. To light the top burners, oven or broiler of this famous range, you simply turn the valve and the gas is automatically lighted.

Here are but a few of the many interesting and revealing demonstrations of modern gas cookery which take place during the programs of the 1941 Gasco Food Institute Cook's Carnival. Be sure to attend the year's most novel cooking school and see what gas has done to make modern cooking more convenient and results surer than ever before.

CHAPTER XXXV

Norma had left her father's knee, and was standing, a singularly unimpressive and childish little figure, in the center of the floor. She spoke with sudden painful effort.

"I don't want anyone to know I'm here, Dad. That's why I didn't cable you. That's why I sneaked into Jocelyn's room. I don't want the servants or anyone to know. That—that was why I wanted to kill myself. I've got to hide somewhere. I've got to be out of everything. You see, what Jocelyn and everybody's been telling me ever since I was a little girl is true. Don't you see I didn't believe you!" she went on impatiently. "I thought I thought a girl could always stop stop herself," Norma said, her voice suddenly harsh and bitter, though she did not raise it, her manner that of a child who had been deceived, "and let anyone else know that she—that it was just fooling."

She broke off in the middle of a phrase and stood facing them, her expression a study in appeal and fear and defiance. Philip sat staring at her like a man turned to stone.

"Norma, you don't know what you are saying!" Jocelyn whispered sharply in the silence.

Philip dropped his head and covered his face with his hands. Jocelyn put her arms about Norma, and they sat down together on the couch.

"Be sensible, dear," Jocelyn said soothingly, "and tell us what you mean. With your mother there, with Sandy right there, nothing could have happened to you!"

"Oh, couldn't it!" Norma demanded, in a voice she tried to make hard and scornful. She was breaking now; she began to breathe fast, and her mouth trembled. "What could that old—that old idiot do?"

"Some man was making love to you?" her father asked, in a quiet businesslike tone, looking up.

"Lots of them were!" Norma answered with a toss of her head. "I had two proposals on the boat!" Arrogant, stupid, limited child that she was, Jocelyn thought, she could boast even now.

"I think this is only a scare, Philip said. "Tell me what happened."

"But you can get me away, Dad? I don't want even Granny to know I'm here. Nobody must know! Patsy and I," Norma said feverishly, "can go to some place somewhere, or some school, and stay there! And I could—"

"Be quieter, Norma!" her father said sternly. Jocelyn had never heard that note in his voice before. "We can't do anything or promise anything until we know what this is all about. You're trying to tell me, I think—I hope I'm wrong!—that you got mixed up in some love affair down there—"

"Begin at the beginning," Jocelyn said with a dry throat.

"Mother, governess, maid, old friends all on the job," Philip murmured, as if he thought aloud.

"Dad, you see this man was on the boat going down, and he was one of the ones who fell in love at first sight," Norma began. "He is much older than I am, and he was divorced, but that wasn't his fault because his wife was the most beautiful woman in Europe and she is the one who rode a horse right up the big steps of Versailles—remember? He said it was in the papers. And she wanted to marry someone else, so that wasn't his fault, was it? So Mama and I thought he was quite nice, and she danced with him and so did I."

She was launched; no matter what her personal dismay, she loved to tell long stories, Jocelyn reflected.

"Go on," Philip said, his face a mask of pain.

"He's a Hungarian prince, Dad; his name is Orgatzky. His family have been in one castle since—"

"You danced with him, you say?" Phil interrupted harshly.

"Yes. Mama, too. But on the boat Sandy was always there. And then when we go to Honolulu we went out to the Frothingham's, and Juju went too."

"Juju was this man, Spot?"

"Yes. And they had a big beach party, with ukuleles and everything—about a hundred and fifty people, and Juju had been always with Mama; I didn't think he especially liked me; two boys had asked me to marry them, but they were just kids. Juju didn't on the boat. But at this beach party—"

She stopped short. Philip had folded his arms on his chest; he did not move a muscle of his face as he said, "Go on."

"Well, it was horribly hot," Norma said, beginning to sound frightened. "And we sort of wandered along the beach and sat down on the dunes—it was night, you know. And it was so hot! And there was some others of us, and then there was no one there with me but Juju, and it was dark, and he began to say how much he loved me and and all that. I'd been lying with my head on his shoulder, Dad, we all had been and we'd been singing and the others were right over the dunes on the sand and I mean if I had screamed they would have come, or they might that's what I was afraid of that they'd think it was just fooling, because you know how everyone screams and calls out at a picnic like that! And then he said he always would love me and I walked back and some others were strolling along, and we came to Sandy and I said I was tired and wanted to go home.

"So the next day I saw Juju at the club and I said that I would always hate him as nobody ever hated anyone before! And then, Dad it all seemed like some horrible thing that I'd dreamed about in the night -- and you won't make me marry him, Dad, will you, because I hate him so! You won't, will you, Dad? Because he'll come up here and say we're engaged and everything—"

"You've told Jocelyn and me this," Philip said, after a long silence when she stopped on a sob "Who else?"

"Nobody. Nobody at all!"

"Then you must forget it, Norma It was all a bad dream," Philip said, his voice sharp, unemotional. "This is a thing that happens sometimes to innocent girls, as well as little fools like you! My poor little old Spot! You'll never see him again. We'll get you straightened out here with clothes, we'll get in touch with your mother; we'll keep you with us now, you'll not be exposed to that sort of guardianship again. A man you shouldn't have been allowed to speak to! A man who knew perfectly well that if he could get a hold on you there would be a comfortable income in it for him for life! It's our fault, dear," her father went on, "Sandy's and your mother's and mine, our fault as much as yours."

"He asked me to marry him afterward, Dad. But I hate him! He's forty! He's nearly as old as you are, Dad. And I didn't tell him. I didn't tell anyone! I wanted to get to you and Jotsy!"

"You didn't tell him what?" Philip said, in a tone that frightened Jocelyn. She looked from his face to Norma's, and her heart died within her. There was no answer in words.

After a while Philip said, "What shall we do now, Jocelyn?" and Jocelyn's heart warmed suddenly to new and unexpected pride. He was in trouble and he needed her! Norma had gone to her father and was sitting on the edge of his chair, her arm about his neck, her head resting wearily against him, and suddenly Jocelyn felt that perhaps father and daughter had never been so closely united in spirit as now; she grieved at last to have hurt him, and he conscious of her need of protection and help.

"We'll think it out, darling," he had said to her. "We'll see you through." And then, to Jocelyn: "What shall we do now?"

"We have time," she said. "We have time to plan."

"Not if we're to be married on Saturday!"

"Well, we could change that."

"But not without letting everyone know that something serious had happened."

"Let me think. Listen, Phil. The Matsonia gets in Saturday! She and her maid would come in on that! She ran away to come to her father's wedding."

"Oh yes, that's right!" he said, his dark face brightening. "She sneaked away and didn't want anyone to know."

"And anyone who was on board, Phil, could only say, 'We never saw her. She and her maid kept absolutely to their rooms.' No newspaper could make anything of that."

"And should we meet her on the dock?"

"Oh, Daddy, you could!" Norma said eagerly, tremulously.

"The first time she's ever cared," Jocelyn thought, "what other people were saying about her."

"We could" her father said hesitatingly

"We could all three sit in the car, Phil, until the people were coming down the gangplank. Then we could suddenly appear, circling around among them, welcoming Norma. We could go right from the boat to Sausalito and be married just as we planned."

"That doesn't solve everything," Philip said. "But it saves our faces for the time being. But then we were leaving for Canada," he went on uncertainly.

"Suppose Norma comes back here and stays a few days with her Granny. Then when your mother goes up to the Rogue she comes on and joins us."

"Well," he said considering, approving, his face still dark and stern. "Well. And then what?"

"Then we'll have to plan on from there."

"A nice wedding day, and a nice wedding present for you!" he muttered. "You're a wonderful woman Jocelyn. I love this girl, Norma," he said whimsically, sadly, to his daughter.

"I do too, Dad," Norma said in a whisper.

"But now about hiding her until Saturday," Jocelyn said. "It can't be here, because the servants will be in and out of these rooms all day. So oh, I know! You're taking me to my aunt early tomorrow, take Norma, too. I'll tell them there that she is one of the girls I knew in the office, and nobody'll ever suspect who she is. They'll all be too much excited to notice anything, and on Saturday we three will come over to town and meet the boat. Or better yet, Phil, why not take us both to Sausalito tonight, now? We originally talked of that. I'll slip into Norma's room and find what clothing I can, and pack a bag and you drive us yourself. I'll only have to wake Aunt Nell; Uncle Bart sleeps like a dead man, and I'll explain that there was so much to do tomorrow—"

EITHER TRENTON WOULD PLEASE

TRENTON, Ont.—(U.P.)—A large number of United States planes soared over the field, then taxied to the landing apron.

"Where are we?" asked the officer.

"Trenton," answered the sentry.

"Trenton, New Jersey, of course."

"No, Trenton, Ontario, Canada," answered the sentry.

"You don't say," said the pilot. With a wink, he said to the other fliers:

"We're all interned, fellows. We will leave the planes here."

The United States planes were flown here to train Canadian airmen.

Man Needs Help-Mate Today

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

In these days of economic storm and stress, the old Biblical term "help-mate," which means a helper as well as a companion, must seem the most desirable gift in a wife.

It's an unusually far-seeing young man who recognizes this quality in a girl. Ordinarily, the high heels, the cobweb stockings, the Cupid's-bow mouth and hair of the latest popular shade continue, as from the beginning, to exercise their usual sorceries.

Countless letters have come to this column from men who attribute their lack of success to wives who have no interest in their careers. Their husbands' professions, if professions they have, are little more to the wives than a means to writing checks.

There returned to Washington, as a member of the house of representatives, the other day, a man who had been absent for several years. He confided how glad he was to get back, and said his wife enjoyed living in Washington. But she had never been interested in keeping in touch with his constituents at home or being anything but bored with the amenities of politics, which had accounted for his defeat.

In her biography, Mrs. Roosevelt tells how pleased she was when her handsome young cousin Franklin, just out of Harvard, invited her to a dance at a family party. Perhaps Mrs. Roosevelt stresses too much her shyness and awkwardness in adolescence. It's hard to believe, seeing what an evolved product she is today, Mrs. Roosevelt has since become the paramount example of "How to Make Friends and Influence People."

That Franklin Roosevelt as president of the United States broke more precedents than any of his predecessors is due in no small degree to his wife. From the time he was stricken with infantile paralysis, Eleanor Roosevelt labored early and late to keep him from considering himself an invalid.

In Ruby Black's book, just off the presses, she relates that when Roosevelt became governor of New York and wanted to investigate the seamier side of his gubernatorial job, but owning to his handicap was unable to climb stairs, his wife saw things and reported them to him.

We began this article by talking about help-mates.

To my way of thinking, Mrs. Roosevelt provides the perfect definition of the word.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Crowding tempestuously upon me were many memories.

She had told me during a memorable interview of the vile trick by which Tom Morton, her first husband, and Marion's father had kept the child from her mother during her first years of babyhood. He had construed Lillian's generous befriending of Dicky, a mere boy and much younger than she, with such venom that in order to save innocent Dicky from a public action which would have disgraced him, she gave Tom Morton the divorce he demanded, and the custody of their baby as well.

There were other memories of the years since a kindly fate gave her child back to Lillian, memories of winsome Marion's happy childhood and of the time when Helena Brixton with her husband and her two children came back into Lillian's life. Carolyn to become Marion's staunch friend and "roomie" at boarding school, and her brother Ronald investing Marion's life with romance as her first admirer.

Lillian had experienced harrowing anxiety about her darling during the years, notably when Marion and Carolyn had been kidnaped from Whitney Hall by Charles Owen, rascally half-brother of Samuel Brixton, in an attempt to obtain the valuable contents of Marion's lock-box, a legacy from her grandmother. But never, in all the years of Marion's joyous childhood and winsome girlhood, had she experienced the slightest shred of worry over her daughter's conduct.

Did this message mean that this most poignant of all maternal anxiety was to be her portion now? I felt as if I were a croaking raven in thought, and attempted to disguise it as I spoke into the receiver.

"Lillian! This is Madge. I have just read the letter you sent me, and really, I believe most of it is what Dicky describes as 'Helena's vivid imagination working overtime.' I wouldn't worry——"

Then it came, the cry I expected, to cope with which I was trying to prepare myself beneath my trivial babble.

"But Madge! you don't understand. I suppose Dicky didn't tell you. The letter means nothing to me now. But Marion has disappeared from the school. They haven't the slightest idea where she is. Oh! Madge! where do you think she can be?"

Her voice, always so cheery, so courageous, was quavering and raucous with fear. I forced my own tones to an optimism I was far from feeling, and strove mightily to keep it steady.

"In any one of half dozen places, no one of which need give you any anxiety," I told her.

"You know better than that," she snapped with an irritation I knew was only natural. In her place I should have answered any similarly banal attempt to cheer me, in just that fashion.

"They wrote me from the college to know why she had left the college without signing out," she went on. "I just got the letter a few minutes ago, and got the college authorities on the wire at once. They tell me she's been gone for four days—think of it, Madge,—my baby—away somewhere—where I don't know. In boarding school of course she'd have been missed in an hour, but at college it's different."

"Did you get hold of Carolyn?"

I put the question with sudden purpose, for I remembered Helena's comment upon Carolyn's "lot of vague talk" and felt a sudden conviction that whatever had befallen Marion, Carolyn knew about it.

Try Baked Duck for Sunday

By BETSY NEWMAN

It is getting near to Thanksgiving, and that means not only planning, for that holiday, but also making the Christmas fruit cake, so it will be seasoned by the time that holiday comes around. Suppose instead of turkey, you have duck for this Thanksgiving. Maybe you would like to try one before the great day when you have company. Or if it isn't your turn to serve the family dinner this year, why not have duck for your own family some Sunday?

Today's Menu.

Baked Duck
Baked Stuffed Potatoes
Corn Pudding Grapefruit Salad
Cranberry Jelly
Honey Date Bars Coffee

Baked Ducked.

Duck Dressing
Orange Juice Hot Water

Clean duck as for chicken, add stuffing, sew up and put on rack in roasting pan. Sear at 450 degrees F., then reduce heat and finish cooking, allowing at least 20 minutes to each pound of fowl. After 30 minutes pour off some of the fat in the pan and use hot water or orange juice for basting.

* * *

Honey Date Bars.

2 eggs
¾ cup honey
½ cup bran
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups dates
½ cup nuts

Beat eggs well, add honey and bran. Sift flour with baking powder and salt, add chopped dates and chopped nut meats. Add these to first mixture, beating well. Spread batter ½-inch thick in greased shallow pan and bake in 375 degree oven for about 30 minutes. These may be cut into bars while warm and dusted with powdered sugar, or served as pudding for today's menu, and served with whipped cream.

* * *

Dressing.

3 cups stale bread
2 tablespoons onions
1½ tablespoon drippings
1 tablespoon fine cut parsley
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon powdered sage
2 cups apples
½ teaspoon grated nutmeg

If you wish a wet dressing, soak bread pieces in cold water for 5 minutes, then press water out. Put dripping in frying pan, heat, add finely cut onions and cook slowly until onions are tender, add bread, finely cut parsley (may be omitted) and seasoning. Mix well together, add chopped apples which have been sprinkled with nutmeg, and mix well, fill duck with same. If you prefer a dry dressing, toast the bread instead of soaking it, and proceed as before.

"The Authority on Authorities"

SEE THE LITTLE CARDS

In the days of Whist it was a great saying that a fine game depended on the use made of the little cards that "the big ones take care of themselves." In contract this is equally true. There is not such a great difference in the way players use the big fellows, but a tremendous one in their employment of the spot cards.

Louis J. Haddad, great Chicago player, admits he bid his hand in somewhat unorthodox fashion, but he played it in a way which would delight the cockles of an old Whist expert's heart. After West led the diamond Q and he studied the dummy, he saw that his chance might lie solely in the fact that dummy had the heart 8, which was higher than his 7, as otherwise he might not have had a good way to get into the dummy.

After winning the diamond lead, he cashed his two top spades and led the heart 10. This perfect play assured success. If West played the J dummy would play the Q. If East did not cover that, he would be in dummy to cash the spade Q and try the club finesse. If East did cover, the heart 8 would be set up for an entry. Actually, West refused to cover, so the heart 5 was played from dummy. If East took this, the Q would be set up. So he ducked to make it tough. Mr. Haddad then led the 9, prepared to cover in dummy if West played the J, but he did not, so dummy's 8 was put on.

It is plain that if East covered now, the contract would be made; if he ducked, his heart K could be dropped and Mr. Haddad could afford the loss of a club trick. It was nice work.

IOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, November 13.

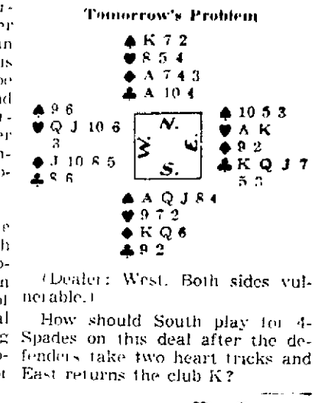

JUDGING BY the lunar transits of this day it may prove more lucrative and happy to "go it alone" rather than to cast your lot with any sort of groups, organizations or "collective bargaining" ideas. Such are under rule of a destructive rather than productive vibration, and in this disruptive direction there may be some rather ruthless, drastic and uncomfortable activities. Nevertheless, joining with the "upper brackets" may advance the financial status as well as enhance position, prestige and pleasure.

If It Is Your Birthday,

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which their best interests may be promoted by working in cooperation with "higher ups," with those of financial, business and social standing, rather than joining forces with groups, whether political, diplomatic, fraternal, or for collective pleas of social service. These latter are under a disruptive ray, while the others are under expansive, productive, generous and pleasant auspices ambitious, fruitful and promising for business as well as personal objectives.

A child born on this day may be expected to be easy-going, pleasure-loving, generous and kindly, making its happiest success in connection with kindred souls rather than uniting with others for uplift and social progress.

Tomorrow's Problem

How should South play for 4-Spades on this deal after the defenders take two heart tricks and East returns the club K?

Murder Weapon Sought In Springfield Double Slaying

THINK MANIAC RESPONSIBLE FOR KILLINGS

No Evidence of Sabotage or Robbery Found In Plant With Defense Orders.

(By United Press)

SPRINGFIELD—Virtually abandoning sabotage as a possible motive, authorities searched today for the metal casting or pickaxe believed to have bludgeoned two to death in a Springfield engine factory early Sunday.

Coroner Austin Richards said either "a gate on a casting," an iron pipe or a pickaxe crushed the skulls of Jesse E. Ray, 51, a machinist, and Fred A. Frior, 44, a night watchman, while they were on duty in the engine plant of the National Supply company.

Both Richards and Prosecutor Jerome A. Nevius expressed belief the slayer was familiar with the layout of the plant and "undoubtedly" was "a homicidal maniac" with a grudge against one or both of the victims.

Nevius said there was no evidence of sabotage. The company currently is engaged in filling several government contracts for engines to be used in national defense.

Robbery or burglary likewise were discounted as motives for the double-slaying in view of the fact that no property was missing either from the victims or the plant.

Authorities concentrated their investigation today on the search for the lethal weapon or weapons that killed Ray and Frior.

So far they have uncovered a 30-inch piece of ¾ inch pipe; a second piece of pipe believed to be from the same section; a third piece believed unlikely to have been used and a three-foot iron bar still under study.

Blood stains were present on the first piece of pipe.

Richards said his inquiry would not be completed for several days, probably not until Friday. He will take depositions from persons who found the bodies and will study evidence before giving a formal verdict.

He revealed that a study of Ray's brain showed it had received a sharp gouge wound. This led to the search for a sharper instrument such as a casting gate or a pickaxe as one of the murder weapons.

Two brothers, arrested for questioning, were released by police yesterday after they had been absolved of any connection with the case.

Police were certain that whoever committed the slayings was familiar with the plant. This theory was supported by the positions where the bodies were discovered.

Child Burned To Death In Athens Stove Explosion

ATHENS—(INS)—A six-year-old child was burned to death and her parents and a brother seriously burned today when coal oil which was being used to kindle a kitchen fire exploded, engulfing their home at Wilkesville, south of Athens in Vinton county, in flames.

The victim of the blaze was Norma Jean McMillan. Her mother, Mrs. Carl McMillan, was painfully burned and was taken to White Cross hospital in Columbus in serious condition.

Also burned were the father and a son, Homer, 18. Another daughter, Mary Ruth, 16, suffered cuts on her legs and body when she kicked out a window in another room and led two other children, Max, 11 and Dale, 10, to safety.

Flames Sweep Atlanta's City Auditorium

According to members of the First Congregational church, Sunday school teachers might do well to drop in on Fred L. Tracy, 67 Parkwood boulevard, some Sunday to pick up a few pointers. Recently Tracy completed 15 consecutive years of teaching a class of young men and apparently his "graduates" don't seem to get enough of his teaching. Grown-up men, some of whom have been away for a long time, drop in on Tracy's class from time to time when they return to the city. Hardly a Sunday goes by without an "oldtimer" attending, members of the church say.

Members of a men's class at First Christian Sunday school were recalling yesterday that almost every one of its members back in 1917 were enlisted in the service ranks, and that four of them, out of one small class, never came back. The four were Earl D. McVey for whom McVey Post is named, Carl Teeters, Maurice DeWitt and Maurice Laser. One other, Herman DeWitt died in a government hospital of war disability. Two of the original class who were in service are still members, Carl Kahl and Carl Warne.

A home-made bed warmer displayed by Mrs. Warren Fort, Red Cross instructor in Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, during her talk at the Roll Call dinner last night had many of the workers making mental notes on how to make one of the gadgets. The bed warmer was made of wood built around a light bulb like a crate. Before retiring at night the user simply turns on the light and slips the article under the covers at the bottom of the bed. All night long, Mrs. Fort said, the little gadget gives off a warm and comforting glow and is highly recommended for winter nights.

EQUIPMENT OF ARMY UNIT IN BUILDING LOST

Damage Estimated at Nearly $400,000; Fire Drives Dancers From Hall.

(By International News Service)

ATLANTA, Ga.—Flames originating in rooms used by the 179th field artillery for practice drills today swept through portions of Atlanta's city auditorium, causing damage estimated unofficially at between $300,000 and $400,000—nearly half of which was represented by destroyed army equipment.

While investigators declined to state immediately whether they suspected sabotage, they were baffled by the fact that only a few hours before the flames were noticed it was discovered that a water main in the rear of the auditorium had been broken.

The blaze was brought under control shortly after 5 a. m. after all available equipment and firemen in the city were rushed to the scene. It was discovered just before midnight.

No casualties were reported.

The flames originated in the upper part of the building, where the artillery rooms are located, and spread rapidly. Army officials said that between $150,000 and $200,000 worth of army equipment stored in the rooms was destroyed.

Part of the roof collapsed, but firemen succeeded in confining most of the flames to the front part of the building.

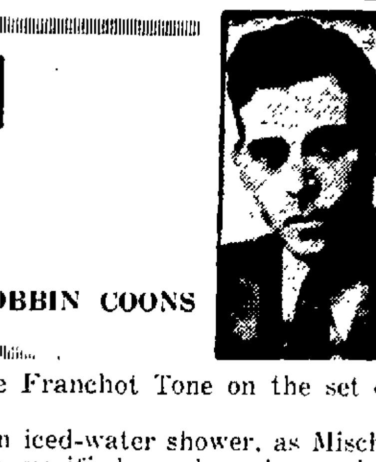

The main auditorium, where a huge stage is located, is constructed of steel and concrete, and was not believed to have been badly damaged. Most of the damage to it was caused by water.

The auditorium has a seating capacity of more than 5,000. It was almost completely rebuilt a few years ago.

Approximately 300 persons, part of more than 1,000 who had been attending a dance in the main auditorium, were still in the building when the flames were discovered. They quickly filed out of the building.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—They like Franchot Tone on the set of "Trail of the Vigilantes."

They haven't given him an iced-water shower, as Mischa Auer received when the script specified merely a shower, but they don't spare him otherwise. Those fun-loving Rover Boys—Brod Crawford and Andy Devine—let their "ribs" fall where they may, and Director Allan Dwan, after Franchot has finished a scene, clucks with mock admiration: "Isn't he wonderful!"

To all of which our Franchot smiles, unruffled, and joins in.

This is worth recording only because, on this set, few had been prepared to like Fanchot. This shows how players can get themselves placed in a hearsay niche. Franchot's, in advance, was the niche reserved for the aloof, the slightly superior, the I-don't-like-Hollywood type, the humorless actor. How players get assigned to these niches is another matter, with its roots in gossip and rumor which are the soil of Hollywood. I'd like to give you today's Franchot, back on the sets after a year and a half on the stage. He's between scenes in his canvas dressing room, still in his cowboy clothes, and sprawling lankily in a sitting-stretching position across the studio couch.

"NO," he said, "I'm not going back to the stage—unless I get a helluva good play. But most of the good playwrights are writing pictures, and most plays can be done better on the screen.

"I think it's good for actors to get back once in a while. Freshens 'em up, just as a change is good for everybody in any field. I needed to get back, myself, to appreciate picture-making more. The stage isn't hard—24 hours a week at best, but it's confining. Here you do something new every day, you can find laughs on the set. You can find gags on the stage, too, but it had better be offstage, and in whispers. Here they help you cry—with menthol.

Dorothy Kilgallen's "Voice of Broadway" column did not arrive in time for publication today.

You can cry on the stage, too, with a mentholated handkerchief. It's the same business. There you do it all together, here you do it piecemeal, and they're both all right. Stage and screen both have their screwball side—like the whole entertainment business."

AS IF bearing him out, an assistant poked his head in the door: "Franchot, we need the back of your right ear."

"Then I'll comb just the right side of my hair," said Franchot, and so doing, went to do his bit. Afterward, he resumed:

"Generally I find movies easier. The parts I've been doing on the stage have been pretty much a nervous strain. Emotional stuff. Great parts, but they wore me down. In 'Fifth Column' I had a long final speech. Kept trying to top myself and came up finally with strained vocal cords. On the other hand, there are tough days in pictures. . . ."

In other words, Franchot is glad, very glad, to be back.

BYRNES BOOSTED FOR SENATE JOB

Clark Also Considered For President Pro Tem To Succeed Pittman.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Sen. James F. Byrnes (D-S.C.), one of President Roosevelt's chief legislative advisers, was advanced today as a likely candidate for senate president pro tempore in a projected reorganization of the chamber's Democratic machinery.

Besides Byrnes, Senator Clark (D-Mo.) also was mentioned as a possible contender for the temporary presiding officer's post left vacant by the death of Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) Sunday. Pittman had been serving during the extended absence of Vice President Garner from the capital.

Clark, who has opposed the administration's foreign policies, might draw some support from Democratic ranks and also from the Republican camp, providing the Republicans themselves do not enter a candidate. The entire senate elects the president pro tempore.

Another question confronting senate Democrats was the choice of a successor to Senator Minton (D-Ind.), majority whip who was defeated for reelection. Minton goes out of office in January. Senator Hill (D-Ala.), assistant whip, appeared to have the edge here.

Extensive changes in senate standing committees also are in sight, when the new congress meets.

Senator George (D-Ga.) was considered the probable successor to Pittman as head of the powerful foreign relations committee. Chairmanship of the judiciary committee, left vacant by the primary defeat of Senator Ashurst (D-Ariz.), appeared to lie either with Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) or Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind.), both opponents of President Roosevelt's 1937 supreme court reorganization bill.

ROACH POWDER VICTIMS FIGHT FOR LIVES AFTER DOZEN DIE

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH — Doctors and chemists at three hospitals today strove to save the lives of 43 men stricken by food poisoning —believed to be roach powder baked in pancakes—which killed 12 wayfarers at a Salvation Army home yesterday.

The stricken men were among 70 partaking of an Armistice day breakfast at the "army's" quarters in the Lawrenceville district of the city.

The home's cook, Arthur Wilson, 30, who Coroner P. J. Henney said mixed the pancake batter, was among those ill. He told authorities he had no idea how the roach powder came to be mixed into the batter.

Adjutant Roy Barber told detectives there was a supply of the insect powder in the kitchen supply room when he took over management of the Salvation Army home in September.

A former cook, who was discharged three weeks ago, was held by Philadelphia police for questioning. Police said that after going to Philadelphia he corresponded with acquaintances here.

A breakfast of pancakes, bacon, coffee and sweet cake was served to 70 lodgers about 7:15 a. m. A few minutes later a half dozen men began to moan with stomach cramps. Then a dozen men writhed in agony on their beds.

The few men who partook only of bacon and coffee were the only ones who escaped the poison.

Dr. Robert Kooser, resident physician at St. Francis hospital said the roach powder—sodium fluoride—is "a terrible poison."

"It destroys the blood cells," he said.

Officials said sodium fluoride is a quick-acting white substance that might easily be mistaken for flour or baking powder. As soon as the poison was determined, hospitals swiftly treated the victims with its antidote—calcium Chloride.

LATE RETURN

Owner Gets Watch Back—26 Years After Theft.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Minn.—(U.P.)—Returned to Frank A. Vogel a watch stolen 26 years ago.

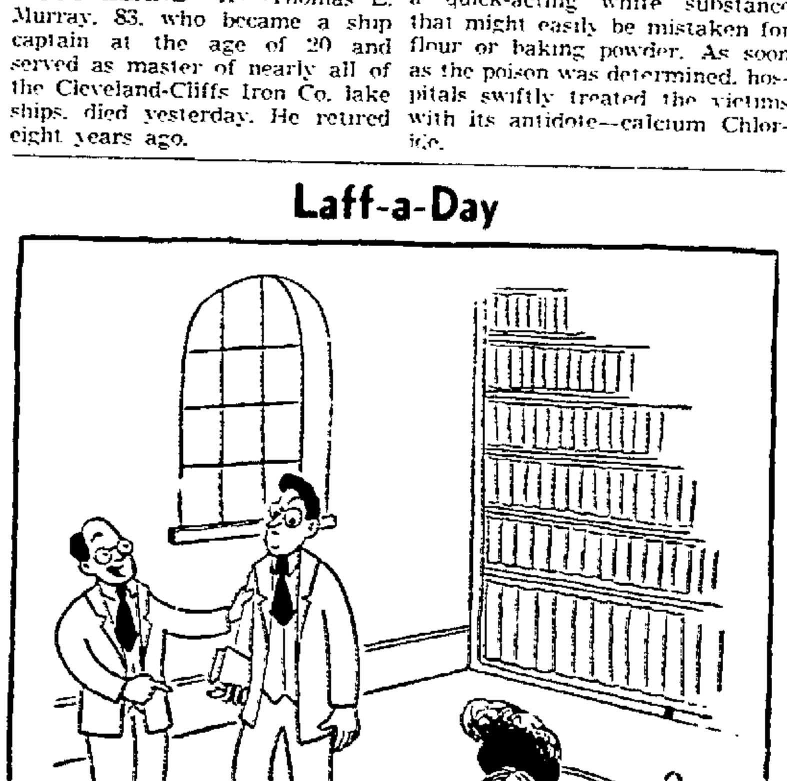

Vogel reported theft of a new gold watch from his locker at a stockyards packing plant in 1914. The watch, no longer gold, turned up in a Duluth pawnshop recently. The hunting case had been replaced with a cheap nickel plated open-face case, but police were able to check the watch number.

Efforts to trace the watch revealed it had been pawned by a man who had borrowed it from a friend, who had purchased it from a Wisconsin jeweler, who had bought it from a South Dakota dealer, who had gone out of business five years ago.

CHURCHILL PAYS TRIBUTE TO LATE NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill paid tribute to the late Neville Chamberlain in the house of commons today, asserting that "he was deceived and cheated by a wicked man."

"Whatever else history may or may not say of these tremendous and terrible years we can be sure that Neville Chamberlain acted perfectly sincerely according to his lights," Churchill said. "He was deceived and cheated by a wicked man."

Churchill disclosed that after resigning as prime minister Chamberlain had refused all honors.

"He would die like his father, plain Mr. Chamberlain," Churchill said.

"Hitler protests with frantic words and gestures that he only desired peace. What do these ravings and outpourings count before the silence of Chamberlain's tomb?"

Churchill said that "the fierce and bitter controversies which hung around Chamberlain in recent times were hushed by news of his illness and silenced by his death." Chamberlain, he said, "met the approach of death with a steady eye."

"If he was grieved at all it was that he could not be a spectator of our victory," said the prime minister. "But I think he died in comfort, knowing that his country at last had turned the corner. . . . He was resolved to pursue the unsought quarrel to death."

Reserve Mentor Shouts Signals For Opposition

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Coach Bill Edwards, so far unaccused of signaling his Western Reserve team from the bench, today admitted "calling signals" for Ohio university in Reserve's 6 to 0 victory Saturday.

Ro Dugan, Edwards' assistant, tells the story like this:

Late in the game Bill saw that Rausch, the Ohio safety man, was playing much too far back.

"Hey, Rausch," he hollered, "are you playing center field? Peden (Don Peden, Bobcat coach) will give you hell if you don't get up here where you belong."

"Aren't you going to punt?" Rausch yelled back.

"I don't think so, not right now," Edwards retorted.

"Thanks, pal," grinned Rausch as he trotted up where he belonged.
